

'We Prayed...Sang Hymns...Hoped'

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — "God, how I hollered!"

These words, uttered through dried and cracked lips by Gorley Kempt, told of his first reaction to the sounds that heralded the miraculous rescue of 12 men from Cumberland No. 2 colliery.

Kempt, lying with his mouth against an air pipe where he and 11 others were trapped for six days and nights behind a wall of rock and debris in terrible darkness, heard a clink of metal hitting metal.

"I couldn't believe it when I heard that cable rattle. I wouldn't let myself believe it. I just lay there listening for nearly an hour, I guess.

"Then I heard a pick or something click on the pipe and I hollered. God, how I hollered."

"When someone hollered back—well, I just can't describe the feeling."

At the other end of the air pipe bare-faced rescue workers heard the words "We are alive here—how about some water."

Twelve hours later they had clawed and dug their way through the barrier and brought out the 12.

Telling of the six days in the tomb, Kempt said: "I dug a cubbyhole in the rubble. I thought there might be a way out but there wasn't. And soon I knew there wasn't. So I just lay there day after day. And I prayed—and I'm not a praying man."

Before many of the 150 hours of their entombment had lapsed, what little food and water they had were exhausted.

After a few days of their eternity their miners' lamps died and they themselves prepared for the death they were almost sure would come.

Caleb Rushton, a choir singer in his spare time, sang hymns from time to time.

"I tried to lead them as best I could and sometimes we were all singing together. I guess our favorite was "Stranger of Galilee." We sang that a lot. It seemed to help."

Joe McDonald, with a fractured thigh, didn't stir from a rock pile for the whole time.

"That's all I did. I just lay there and I prayed and thought about the Lord and asked Him to bring me out safely. That and the stuff we drank; that's what kept me alive."

Wilfred Hunter crawled back and forth in the tunnel.

"When the bump came last Thursday, the floor came up and the ceiling came down. I was hurled about 15 feet along with more falling coal and rock and timber and iron than I ever saw. Two steps behind me were my buddy and my boss. I haven't seen them since but we'll get them out now, I guess.

The buddy, Carl Moran, was buried today. The boss was Charlie Burton whose funeral was held on Wednesday.

"We had a couple of lamps operating for a day or so and I crawled around to look," said Hunter. "I saw my twin brother, Frank imbedded in the

REST WELL. LUCKY MINER

Nurses at All Saints Hospital make sure rescued Springhill miner Caleb Rushton rests comfortably

after nearly week sealed in mine ruins. At first given up for dead, 12 lucky miners were brought up alive.

Wengren Power Company Formed

First concrete step toward the development of huge hydro power resources in the proposed "Wenner-Gren Empire" in the Rocky Mountain trench was taken today with the incorporation of a $20,000,000 company.

It is called the Peace River Power Development Company. (See Page 9 for details.)

Bus Fare Hike 3 to 5 Cents

But fares in Victoria city will go up from 10 to 13 cents cash on Sunday, Nov. 9, the Public Utilities Commission announced today. The city zone extends in a 3½-mile circle from the City Hall.

Children's half fares will remain at 5 cents cash in the city.

Books of tickets for city travel will be sold to adults at four for 50 cents (12½ cents each) and to children at five for 25 cents (5 cents each).

Similar increases will be effective in outer Victoria and in Vancouver, North Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster.

In Vancouver city adults will pay 15 cents instead of 13, and children 7 cents instead of 5.

Meeting in Victoria this morning, the PUC decided to grant B.C. Electric's application for higher transit fares in full.

REASONS GIVEN

Reasons given for the decision were: 1. Higher operating costs. 2. The need for B.C. Electric to show "a reasonable return" on its operation in order to borrow fresh capital. 3. Fewer people using the buses because of increased auto traffic.

The fare increase were vigorously protested at recent public hearings given by the PUC in Victoria and Vancouver at which the municipalities were represented by counsel.

The PUC felt that many of these protests were "unrealistic," a spokesman said. Cash fares from Victoria city to the first outer zone extending four miles from the City Hall, will increase from 13 cents to 15 cents for adults, and from 6 cents to 7 cents for children.

Books of tickets for this zone will increase from 4 for 50 cents to 5 for 75 cents for adults and from 5 for 25 cents to 4 for 25 cents for children.

In the second outer zone, extending five miles from City Hall, adults will pay 17 cents cash and children 9 cents cash.

There will be no books of tickets for adults in this zone, but children can buy them at 10 for 80 cents instead of 10 for 70 cents as now.

Rescuers Burrow For More Miners

Only Faint Hope Others Survived

(Times News Services)

SPRINGHILL, N.S.—Rescue workers burrowed through the wrecked No. 2 colliery today in search of missing miners given up for dead by 12 survivors brought to the surface after more than six days in a cramped air pocket.

"There is nothing much we can do but keep slugging—and it's hard-slugging," said Harold Gordon, general manager of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation colliery operations.

"We can't tell what conditions are like ahead," said Mr. Gordon. "The spirit of the rescue teams is terrific."

A total of 56 men were still unaccounted for, although the miners rescued early today said they had spent their lonely wait surrounded by 24 bodies. A total of 25 bodies have been recovered from the mine, and 93 men have been rescued.

When the earthquake-like "bump" crumpled the mine shaft last Thursday night, 174 men were working in the mine, about 50 of them at the 13,000-foot level, where the last 12 survivors were found.

All 12 rescued from the 13,000-foot level early today were reported to be in "surprisingly good" condition considering their six-day ordeal.

They said, "there's no hope for the others. We counted 24 bodies."

However, one rescue worker said, "we didn't expect to find those fellows down there, and damn it we can't quit now."

Relatives of still missing miners gathered at the pithead again, to await developments, and removal of bodies.

The 70 rescue workers were split into two teams, one to re-

$5,000 GIFT BY POPE JOHN

OTTAWA (CP)—A $5,000 gift to the hard-hit mine families of Springhill, N.S., was among the first actions to be taken by the new Pope John XXIII.

The apostolic delegation here announced today that the money has been sent to Most Rev. J. Gerald Berry, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Halifax, to be dispensed.

move bodies and the other to explore the rest of the 13,000-foot tunnel.

The work of the exploratory crew took preference, and no bodies were to be removed if it held up the drive to the far end of the tunnel.

Doctors who examined the 12 latest survivors said that only two, Ted Michniak, 35, and Joseph McDonald, 38, suffered injuries. McDonald has a broken leg and Michniak a badly injured back.

Men Held for Observation

The men will be held for a 48 or 72-hour observation period and those found fit will be released.

The families of the miners, who were allowed to visit the men shortly after they were admitted, will be allowed a second visit tonight.

Newsmen were given three minutes for fast interviews this morning.

The miners complained mainly of thirst. They shared a two-quart can of water among them, but it lasted only three days.

"My God, give me a drink," McDonald said, as he was carried into the hospital on a stretcher.

McDonald's brother, Norman, said Joe brought out what could be some indication other men might be alive in pockets which missed being crushed. He said Joe reported he could hear voices "far away."

There was no way to determine immediately whether the voices reported by the 38-year-old miner were those of the rescuers or other men caught farther along the tangled mass of rock and timber.

With almost no food and water, each man lost about 10 pounds. A doctor said they mixed their own urine with bark and drank it to quench their burning-thirst after water was exhausted.

One coal digger said rescuers had about 300 feet to go to reach the end of the 13,000-foot level, the last part of the mine where survivors could be.

To reach these men could take hours or days, depending on how badly the tunnels were plugged with fallen stone, timbers, shattered mine machinery and other debris.

A rescue worker said conditions on other levels where men survived lent hope that at least some of the 55 may have found an open space large enough to give shelter and air.

Air has continued to be pumped into the mine since the bump last Thursday. Rescue crews built barriers at lower levels in efforts to direct fresh air into the 13,000-foot level where the 12 men were trapped.

In the case of the survivors, air continued to seep into them despite broken air lines.

The 12 had given themselves up to approaching death. So had many of their rescuers. Only a few wives and families had held

RESCUER'S STORY

FAINT VOICE 'LIKE SHOCK'

Editor's note: Here is Earl Wood's story of how the rescue crew of which he was a member found 12 men alive in the Cumberland mine. Wood, 48, has worked in the mines for years.

By EARL WOOD
As Told to The Canadian Press
SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—I was working away in a shaft leading from the main slope, digging in a solid wall of coal, when all at once the coal became very loose and with a roar a cloud of dust and hot air blew into my face.

This was about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning and we sat there half an hour or so waiting for the dust to settle. We were hopeful because we felt sure we had reached the opening we were hunting for. There was some gas and it was terribly dusty.

I went back again with two of the officials. We had high hopes that there might be a hole big enough for a man to crawl through.

After we had been sitting and watching for some time we thought we heard someone speak. It was just a piece of a word and very faint but it hit us like an electric shock.

We looked back toward the

THE PETER TOWNSEND STORY

Margaret Found Harmony of Mind

By NORMAN BARRYMAINE

(Copyright By Peter Davies Ltd.)

CHAPTER 4

It was a chill morning in February when Townsend, now 29 years old and as impeccable as hours of work by his batman and tailor could make him, was saluted by the sentry outside the gilded wrought-iron gates of the Palace and then was shown into the King's study by a servant in blue battle dress.

It was a small sunny room decorated in the King's favorite colors—light-green walls and dark-green carpet. The interview lasted about half an hour.

The King must have asked many questions about Peter's life and Peter's family—a family that for generations had served its country.

So while the King was desirous of rewarding gallantry rather than of furthering the advantages of birth, Peter Townsend was really tailor-made in both respects.

Also, from the standpoint of the court, he was married to the right kind of woman. There is no doubt Peter made a good impression. A few days later the appointment was confirmed.

Peter was to become a courier. In a month he had started work in the palace.

If this story were fiction, it would be a picturesque touch in weaving the threads of a romance to have Peter meet Princess Margaret on the day he went to see the King for the first time. In fact, this is what really happened.

In those days the Princess lived with her elder sister, Elizabeth, at Windsor Castle. They came to London one day each week.

After Peter had left the King's room he was standing in the corridor outside the equestrian room talking to one of the household. Elizabeth and Margaret came along. Peter was introduced.

To the 13-year-old Princess Margaret, Townsend was just one more of that army of service officers who could be seen in the palace at any time during those vital years of war.

And what did Townsend think of her?

The impression she created on everyone at that time was of a leggy, excitable girl with a lot to say and very little time in which to say it. She chattered endlessly in a voice far louder than the usual murmur employed by the Royal Family.

ceiling and just dangling there. He was dead but I couldn't leave him.

"Every day I would crawl over to where he was in the dark and feel that he was still there. I didn't want to lose him."

Hunter said they had only a two-quart can of water among the 12. "We rationed it but it lasted only three days."

While some of the 12 admitted they had abandoned hope, Hunter declared he didn't.

"I guess I turned over every stone and once I thought I heard somebody tapping. But even after that stopped—about the second day—I didn't give up hope. I figured we'd get out."

McDonald said: "We were Catholics and Protestants down there but we all prayed together aloud that God would save our lives. I'm thinner and pretty weak but my spirit's strong."

After four or five days, he said, he thought he heard noises at the top of the 13,000-foot wall. "But they seemed awfully far out. Since some of the boys had already given up hope, I didn't mention it."

Rushton said others had died around them while they waited.

"There were some it hurt the first night but nothing afterwards. Those who weren't killed instantly by the bump, and most of them were, died shortly after the gas started coming in."

"The gas wasn't too bad and later we got a little circulation of air to clear it. But those who were badly hurt at the start didn't have the energy to fight off the fumes."

"I was wearing a luminous watch and we kept track of the time and days that way. She's a pretty good watch. Nothing stops her. . . . I guess she's blessed with the same higher power that saved us."

Rushton said two lunch-pails were found after the upheaval smashed the mine. The men nibbled on corners of sandwiches for two days.

"It was while we were nibbling that I started them singing hymns. . . . I'm a choir singer and they really liked it when Bowie Maddison and I would do a duet on "Stranger of Galilee." They liked that better than any other hymn and we sang it three or four times a day for them."

Maddison said: "I kept feeling over for the man next to me to make sure I wasn't alone. When I would feel he was there, I would know he was still with me and both of us were alive. There must be a God to give us the faith we had in knowing we would be found all right."

Dr. John R. Ryan said the men told him they had tried to dig themselves out but soon tired in the waist-high pocket.

"Barry Leadbetter, Levy Milley and Hugh Guthro were in exceptionally good shape when they finally emerged. A good man can go a month without food provided he has water. But these men were five days without food and six days without water."

"And when they came out Leadbetter said he was strong enough to walk on his own. He would have, too, but I doubt whether he could have gone far."

"They did a great thing," he said.

"We were all so happy to see them, the whole bunch of us just started to cry."

a thread of hope. Some had purchased cemetery lots.

It was on Monday, four days after the mine caved in, that they abandoned hope of being rescued. For the last three days they sat in darkness and waited for the end.

Then Wednesday afternoon, they heard a noise at the end of an air pipe. Less than 12 hours later rescuers freed them.

Gorley Kempf, 37-year-old father of two teen-agers, was the first of the 12 brought by a man-carrying rake from a working area 13,000 feet away down a long, sloping shaft.

A crowd of hundreds cheered as his blanket-covered wire stretcher was hurried to an ambulance by a crew of bare-faced miners who clawed and tunneled for 6½ days before finding life in the tremor-shaken colliery.

The crowd dwindled after the ambulance sped away from the pithead towards a hospital. An hour later the bell signalling the arrival of another rake brought the hundreds back to the roped-off shaft entrance.

Dr. J. G. B. Lynch, chief medical officer of Dominion Coal Company, said the survivors were all conscious and were being given blood and plasma.

"Most of them are just lying there smoking cigarettes and enjoying the feeling of being human again."

He said only "the great stamens of these miners" pulled them through.

"I'm all right," Kempf told reporters shortly after he walked unaided into All Saints' Hospital. "I'm just terribly tired and weary."

At the hospital waited the wives and children of the 12 men most never expected to see again.

"God was good to him twice," said Cecilia McDonald as she gently stroked her husband's coal-stained hair. "He escaped twice and that's enough." She said he would not return to the pits.

'WE JUST SAT ...'

Miners Weep at Rescue

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — Hugh Guthro, 31-year-old coal miner, said from a hospital bed today he and his 11 buddies cried when they knew rescuers were coming for them.

Guthro, twice spared death in mine accidents, told his wife to go home and rest rather than stay any longer with them at All Saints Hospital.

The 12 men who returned from a mine where life was counted out prayed, sang hymns and managed the odd joke during their nightmare.

With less than an hour's sleep during the underground ordeal, Guthro took 40 minutes to talk about his second escape from a battered coal mine. He was trapped three days in neighboring No. 4 colliery in 1956 before rescuers reached him.

When the upheaval occurred Thursday Guthro said the men near him were tossed up against the ceiling. He remained conscious and knew miners were dying along the coal wall. He was buried up to the chest. Others helped him out.

"At first we tried to dig our own way out but soon we got so weak we had to stop. We had no food and no water since Sunday or Monday. The last thing we ate were a few crusts of bread."

"We rationed our lights and cut some batteries off the dead men but on Monday we were in darkness."

Guthro said there was no gas in their tomb and fresh air seeped in. "We just sat during the last three days."

Guthro said the bare-faced miners, who conduct rescue operations without respirators, "did a great thing." Miner Mort Hunter was the first man to appear in the hole the rescuers burrowed through.

"I'm done with coal mining," Guthro said. "You come out of it twice and that's enough. I'm not trying for a third time."

'GREAT RELIEF' — DIEFFENBAKER

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the rescue of 12 miners at Springhill was "a very great relief."

"I can only hope—and pray—it is not too much to hope that in the next few hours news of more survivors may be reaching us," he said.

leader, which was on the way back to the slope, and found about 40 feet away that the pipe was broken off.

We figured that the voice we heard must have been someone in the tunnel and we sat down to wait.

About 2 o'clock the superintendent and the engineer decided to check the air. Blair Phillips, the engineer, took his testing bottle and went to check the air coming from the pipe I had uncovered.

DRAMATIC WORDS
I guess the reflection of the bottle must have sent light into the hole because the next words I heard I will remember all the days of my life:

"We are alive in here—how about some water?"

It was a great thrill and we all laughed and cried and 'hollered at the same time. I don't really remember what was said for the next few minutes but I can tell you we were whooping it up for a minute or two.

Two of the fellows with me—Arnold Reese and George Hodges—had a brother-in-law, Harold Brine, in there, so we let them do most of the talking. They told us they were in pretty good shape although Joe McDonald had a broken leg.

They still had time for jokes and when Scott, a Scotsman with a burr to match, yelled to them, somebody from inside told him to take the marbles out of his mouth and talk English.

There were lots of other jokes but it might be better if I didn't tell them—they were good pit talk.

It was something we never dreamed could happen. I had given up all hope. It was far beyond a miracle.

Bloody Glass Print Till's

Bloodstained fragments of broken bottle found at the scene of a double slaying at Metchosin bore hand-prints identified as those of murder suspect Matthew John Till, his preliminary hearing was told Wednesday.

Till, 16, who is charged with the murder of his foster father Charles E. Mudge, 38, was remanded to Nov. 6 when presentation of Crown evidence will resume.

Meanwhile he was to be returned to his cell at Oakalla jail today.

Thirty-three of the Crown's 40 witnesses had been heard at the session presided over by Magistrate A. I. Thomas at Victoria RCMP court.

PRINTS ON GLASS

Those remaining include technical experts and Mrs. Phyllis Mudge, 28, victim of a beating the afternoon of her husband's death, Sept. 13.

Mrs. Mudge's father, John Brand, 71, who lived with the family at 3460 Metchosin, also was shot dead.

Cons. Robert C. King, of Victoria RCMP identification section, told the court he found partial palm prints, apparently in blood, on two pieces of broken green glass of beer bottle type.

He said tests showed the prints matched those of Till.

The second glass fragment was from the neck of a bottle. Cons. King said, and on questioning by prosecutor Kenneth Murphy, the witness illustrated how he deduced the bottle had been held.

He grasped another bottle by the neck and held it upside-down.

Cons. King said he took another photo of a partial thumbprint, also in blood, which was found on the frame of a kitchen door at the Mudge house.

This matched the right thumbprint of Mrs. Mudge.

Defence counsel Joseph McKenna in cross-examination of Cons. King devoted much time to questions regarding photographs and exhibits identified by him in evidence Tuesday and Wednesday.

He requested and was granted further opportunity to cross-examine when the hearing resumes next week.

Police commission Wednesday was told $4,105 of fines were levied under the Motor Vehicle Act and $1,500 was paid by six persons convicted of driving while impaired.

Public Backs Rink, Up to Jaycees Now

Final decision on a proposed $123,000 campaign to provide a second ice sheet in Victoria will be made by Junior Chamber of Commerce members Wednesday.

Overwhelming public endorsement of the project in a telephone poll conducted by the Jayces Wednesday night makes the campaign almost a certainty.

Over 1,000 Victorians called in to give their opinions; 99 per cent voted in favor of the project and 75 per cent promised financial assistance.

"Since the public is so much in favor," said JCC project director Stuart Hagar today, we would like to go ahead on a fund-raising campaign in the very near future, but of course it's up to the general membership."

If launched, the campaign would be conducted jointly by the Jaycees, Victoria Figure Skating Club, and the minor Hockey League.

Estimated cost of the steel and concrete structure is $148,000, of which the Jaycees have already raised $25,000 to be used if the remainder is obtained.

The building would be situated adjacent to the Memorial Arena and would use existing freezing equipment.

Change of Climate

AT LEAST ONE GREAT AND good thing is happening in this demented world—a British statesman has proved that friendship with the United States is not political poison as many of his contemporaries had supposed.

Probably Prime Minister Macmillan would have been popular by now anyway, as a result of his successful policies in domestic affairs. But he is popular despite his warm friendship with the American people, his loyal support of American policy.

Given the history of British-American relations after Suez, Mr. Macmillan's popularity on a strong pro-American attitude is news as surprising as man-bites-dog. And it reflects not only the prime minister's trained intelligence but the old, deep, commonsense of the whole British people.

As The Christian Science Monitor correspondent reports from London, there is nothing new about the goodwill between the present Governments of Britain and the United States. The brief quarrel of Suez was soon repaired, thanks mainly to Mr. Macmillan's hard, Scottish realism and remarkable patience. What is new, however, as The Monitor says, is the depth of the new trans-Atlantic co-operation in the details of government from the highest level to the lowest.

The British ambassador at Washington, we are told, is being kept better informed of developing American policy from the beginning than at any time since the last war. In the same way British views and decisions are channeled to Washington, often long before they are made public.

This is not merely an exchange of pleasantries and abstract principles. Actual day-to-day policy is being concerted, by no means perfectly, of course, but with a surprising new spirit of collaboration.

For example, Britain and the United States co-ordinated their intervention in the Middle East and synchronized their withdrawal. Britain (much more than Canada) has refrained from any criticism of the Eisenhower Government in the crisis of the offshore Chinese islands. The United States for its part has done nothing to embarrass Britain in Cyprus—a sharp change of attitude since Suez.

The new feeling of harmony has produced valuable dividends for Britain. When the pound was under heavy attrition it found support in the International Monetary Fund, thanks primarily to American pressure. Restrictions on atomic information long maintained by the United States have been relaxed in Britain's case. The United States has given tacit support to Britain's vital position in the oil area of Kuwait. It is prepared to let Britain share its latest weapons.

These are details. The important thing is that Mr. Macmillan has been warming the trans-Atlantic climate of opinion and has proved that his policy works in practical British politics. Anti-Americanism, once the stock in trade of some British politicians, is losing its popularity.

For this change we have mainly to thank Russia, which usually drives the West together at the point of crisis, but intelligence at work in London and Washington, especially the intelligence of the British prime minister, deserves credit, too.

What Is the Answer?

ALTHOUGH HE DOES NOT appear to have mentioned NORAD directly, Major-General W. H. S. Macklin's attack on Canada's defence policy must be viewed as criticism of our joint defensive arrangement with the United States.

This constitutes the political, as distinct from the technical, aspect of the former adjutant-general's comments.

But he does not object so much to the R.C.A.F.'s participation in the continental defence plan, with joint headquarters in Colorado, as to the particular deployment of our air force. General Macklin sees it now as an incomplete force, unable to function adequately on its own but reduced to "handmaiden" service to the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

Granting the truth that with abandonment of the Arrow interceptor the R.C.A.F. enters upon a new era of existence in which very little of the force will be airborne, the question still remains as to what General Macklin could propose as an alternative.

Obviously, in a missile age North America must be defended as a unit. In such a co-operative venture the forces of the two component nations must be welded into a usable whole. At the same time it would not be good for one partner to become completely dependent on the other. It is General Macklin's contention that the R.C.A.F. is becoming a specialized appendage, otherwise useless in itself, to the American defence body.

His second point, dealing with the technical aspects of the problem, is equally difficult to decide. Canada, like all other powers, is in the throes of a revolution in armaments. The manned aircraft is on the way out. The supersonic missile is taking its place, and demands a similar defensive weapon in reply.

The problem of the Canadian Government, as of other countries, is to provide some form of interim defence while newer weapons are being perfected. The Bomarc missile is such an interim weapon, but even it is being superseded by the Nike-Hercules missile, which itself is not by any means the final answer and in any case is not yet available to Canada.

In such circumstances, General Macklin's criticism is pertinent and cannot be ignored. But it is criticism which should be accompanied by an alternative solution which can win agreement from the other experts. That alternative is not yet clear.

Someone Pays for Exemptions

THE B.C. ELECTRIC HAS asked for exemption from provincial gasoline and diesel fuel oil taxes on its urban transportation system in an obvious effort to cut costs.

As the company has explained on numerous occasions, the transit operations are running in the red. Some means, the B.C. Electric rightly feels, must be found to bridge the gap between revenue and expenditure. The fuel tax—which a spokesman says ran to $240,000 on urban services last year—is a substantial ingredient in the operating loss. Of the total, $70,000 was collected in Greater Victoria.

The company makes the point that its urban buses do not use roads built and maintained by the Provincial Government. They travel over streets financed by the municipalities, and the B.C. Electric makes payments to the municipalities under the franchise to cover the costs of wear and tear, among other things.

But when the company makes its tax exemption application—on that basis, it is confronted by the fact that cities and municipalities must themselves pay the tax on fuel for their own vehicles using their own roads.

If the company receives exemption, why should not the cities and municipalities? And if they are given special consideration, where is the line drawn? Do ambulance and welfare service operators claim a similar concession?

Moreover, if the bus service is excused from such tax payments, who will make up the lost revenue to the province? Will an increased burden fall on other car owners? Or will it be handed on to the public in general?

While the position of the bus system calls for sympathetic understanding—and a fare increase or reduction in service would be met by strong opposition—the principle of tax exemption is dangerous. A business excused from tax payment is automatically subsidized by other businesses and individuals who pay those taxes.

The Wrong Spirit

THE LAMENT OF A COMMUNIST writer that whisky made in East Germany cannot compare with the product of Scotland can only be viewed as part of a pattern. Very few if any of the Western ideas currently being copied on the other side of the Iron Curtain come up to the original in quality. The most outstanding example is democracy, which under Communism becomes merely a word to cloak the authoritarianism of the ruling clique. Like Communist whisky, it befoodies, but does not measure up to standard.

LOOSE ENDS

Canada in the Deep Freeze

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

LIKE most important things, the sentence of doom passed on Canada has been generally ignored. It will be found in Harper's Magazine and condensed to a neat, chilling capsule in the Reader's Digest. Briefly, Canada has no future except as a large chunk of gleaming scenery under glaciers some several miles deep.

Two American scientists, Messrs. Maurice Ewing and William Donn, predict the return of the polar ice cap not long hence, only a few thousand years, and in this scientific age no one will doubt the word of a scientist. Despite all our collective labors, all the intelligence of government and all our recovery from the recession, Canada is through. Mr. Diefenbaker's Vision of the North has overlooked its real contents. They are about to move south.

Messrs. Ewing and Donn are evidently men of genius; the Sherlock Holmeses of science. They have unlocked the mystery of former ice ages and placed the next one on schedule.

The first descent of the glaciers, one gathers, was precipitated by a shift in the earth's unstable surface, the movement of the north pole from mid-Pacific into its present location. That started a lot of trouble for Canada.

The Arctic Ocean, almost entirely surrounded by land, froze and seemed safely locked up. But it wasn't.

After a short time, a few thousand years, the Arctic ice began to melt, the surrounding air became moist and condensed in snow, which fed the glaciers until they flowed south and covered half of North America, the Canadian half. The same thing is bound to happen again, is already under way. The Arctic is growing warmer and the familiar cycle has started.

Hence it is inevitable that Canada must be buried in ice. Reading the prognosis of Messrs. Ewing and Donn, one can almost see the thin white line advancing from the horizon, hear the grinding sound of glaciers and sniff the cold.

The Yukon, the Northwest Territories, the new mining towns, the roads, railways, hydro dams and oil wells will go first, I suppose. Then there will be a desperate human flight from Edmonton, Saskatoon and Prince George as the first ice chunks extinguish the Wenner-Gren empire and roll down the John Hart Highway.

MONTREAL, Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary will be safe for a little while longer and no doubt will provide shelter and soup kitchens for the northern refugees. The Vancouver and Victoria tourist bureaus will keep a stiff, half-frozen upper lip and continue to advertise the Evergreen Playground, though most American tourists will be heading for the equator and Honolulu. But when the green turns white, when Mr. George L. Warren, the great sachem of Victoria's tourist industry, hastily packs his photographs and road maps, takes one despairing look up Government Street and leaps, like Liza, across the ice floes of Juan de Fuca's congealing Strait, then the history of Canada will be definitely interrupted.

As Our Readers See It

'Have We the Right...?'

The appalling mine disaster at Springhill, Nova Scotia, should surely make us ask ourselves, "Have we the right to expect men to mine coal under such hazardous conditions?"

Our engineers and scientists have used their brains to develop atomic energy, but it may be many years before this is available for heating our homes. In the meantime, is there no one who can devise a mechanical means of mining the coal and saving the lives of human beings and the sorrow brought to their families?

Amalgamation First

As one who holds a very deep rooted attachment to Greater Victoria, I have been interested in the recent suggestion that the four municipalities share in a plan for a civic auditorium.

Whether or not the current conversations will develop into reality, time alone will tell. However, from comments made by some of the municipal leaders it must be obvious to everyone that little hope can be held out that there ever will be a civic auditorium for the use and enjoyment of all people in Greater Victoria.

On many occasions when I was reeve for Saanich, I endeavored to impress upon municipal leaders and others, reasons and necessity for amalgamation of Greater Victoria. I continually pointed out that by not having one municipal government in the area, the people could not expect and hope for united action on such projects as the auditorium, east-west Mackenzie Avenue highway, development of McRae estate and Beaver-Elk Lake as parks, one city hall including Public School Board worthy of the people of Greater Victoria. These projects and others of cultural and entertainment value are constantly being opposed by some municipal leaders interested only in their own "little back yards."

While Rome burns these municipal leaders glibly talk of increased populations that will eventually settle in Greater Victoria overlooking the fact that these and other projects will encourage new settlers and present Victoria as a thriving, progressive place in which to live. Ways and means must and can be found to attract tourists and settlers. There must be jobs and security. These leaders should face the fact that very little if any more industry will ever come to the lower Vancouver Island.

All these projects cannot be had overnight, however, they must be planned now. In planning for the future, amalgamation is the first step. This would overcome the narrow-mindedness, selfish and parochial feelings instigated by some of the present municipal leaders and a few citizens. Future citizens will not remember or care what we say today, but they will remember what we did.

It reminds me that Giuseppe Mazzini, Italian patriot, once said, "The moral law of the universe is progress. Every generation that passes idly over the earth without adding to that progress remains uninspired upon the register of humanity, and the succeeding generation tramples its ashes as dust."

ARTHUR J. R. ASH

Time to Amalgamate

So brief is the time allotted us in terms of evolution and progress that man presents a pitiable picture as he clutches at insularity. Gregarious, needing his fellow-men, he stands barking, snapping and growling at the least attempt towards amalgamation and often unthinkingly avails himself of its sharing. Meanwhile he greedily and often unthinkingly avails himself of its benefits without cost to himself.

There has been a laboring and belaboring of the obvious in the matter of amalgamation. Aldermen rise defensively at the mere mention of this word which means "participation, co-operation, alliance, etc."

Words hidden in bluster and confusion spew forth and create an impasse, automatically flimsy barriers are raised so that Mr. Jones can continue to live in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, but may condescend to partake of Victoria occasionally. Does he know about its attitude?

If rezoning processes and emotions could be kept apart, a unity of purpose, might quite naturally evolve. Why not face the challenge of things needed and amalgamate towards the easier acquisition of these cultural and other improvements to which all will be entitled? Waiting devours energy and initiative, while someday it could be said with pride—we did what we could with yesterday towards the creation of today!

Notched For Cutting

By JAMES MORRIS
from Hong Kong

MORE people live in Hong Kong than in all the rest of the world put together, and they make more noise than a million electric drills, and they work like automation; and their babies are beyond computation, and their machinery chitter-chatters away for twenty-five hours every day; and in their markets they sell every fish that was ever caught, and every shrimp that ever wriggled, and every crab that ever pinched; and their excellent shirts cost 4½d apiece; and there are five million Chinese for every European in the city, each one of them more energetic than Calder Hall; and all these unbelievable paradoxes of prolixity and profusion are a lesson in the impermanence of power and the mutability of history.

Just over a hundred years ago the British seized Hong Kong from an added China, and were conceded sovereignty over it "in perpetuity." It was almost uninhabited, but they made of it a tremendous port and a gunboat station supreme, where British merchants could command the China trade beneath the guns of the Royal Navy.

Hong Kong became one of the greatest of free ports and entrepôts, and a symbol of European superiority.

Early Contrast

Here the techniques of the Western world were applied to the corrupt and ramshackle structure of China. The merchant princes lived in splendor on the eminence of the Peak, while across the hills in China the impotent Asians squabbled and cheated each other and carved the ivory elephants that would one day look so pretty upon the mantelpiece in Epsom.

Today the British are still in Hong Kong, and the rich merchants roll down from the Peak each morning in their big black ponderous limousines. The great banks and merchant houses are still magnificently bustling, the company flags fly bravely beside the Union Jack. But you cannot spend a day in Hong Kong without realizing that it lives by the courtesy, and at the mercy, of the new China.

Times have changed with an imperial vengeance. The long grey warships that still lie in the harbor (successors to Aphid and Mantis and the elegant old river gunboats) no longer fool anybody, least of all the hard-headed British. Hong Kong is indefensible, militarily and economically, and it lives half on trust and half on cynicism.

Consider its geographical situation. If you stand on a high place on Hong Kong Island you can see virtually the whole of the Colony. Below you is Hong Kong itself, for ever England, and beyond it is the glorious sweep of the harbor, crammed with the steamers and junks and ferryboats and launches of free enterprise, never silent, never motionless, one of the great mercantile waterways of the world.

But in the middle distance are the mountains of China proper, and most of the land in between—the essential hinterland of Hong Kong—does not belong to Britain, but is only held on a lease that expires towards the end of this century (if international leases have any meaning by then).

Ominously Close

Not only is China ominously close. In its own backyard British Hong Kong has only the precarious rights of tenancy.

Without the food brought from China, without its ducks and hens and vegetables, Hong Kong probably could not long survive.

The Communists know that when the lease of the hinterland (the New Territories) expires in 1998, Hong Kong will be theirs for the plucking; but they also know that if need be they could squeeze Hong Kong into submission long before then.

All the cards are theirs. They can take the place by force, if they are willing to risk a world war. They can starve it out. Or they can simply wait for another 39 years, a mere flicker of time among the Chinese centuries.

With so plump and once cocky a mouse between its claws, it is perhaps understandable that the Chinese cat enjoys playing with its victim.

There is an element of sadism in the attitude of Peking to Hong Kong. The Communist propagandists are blatantly active in the city, flaunting their huge posters and their red flags, selling their books and their magazines, and their newspapers, infiltrating the schools and threatening the unions.

But if the Hong Kong Government allows itself a mild riposte, closing a school, expelling a subversive educationist, or tearing down a flag or two, swift and menacing is the protest from Peking.

Sometimes Peking brings its economic pressure momentarily to bear on Hong Kong. It forces the Hong Kong fishermen, who fish in the Pearl River estuary, to hand over their catches to the Chinese Co-operatives — and then floods the Hong Kong market with their own fish.

Economic Upsets

Or it pours produce into the Colony's free port at prices that play havoc with the local economy. Sometimes these interferences are prompted by a particular event, some act of British strategy or foreign policy; but more often, apparently, they are merely the snarl between Peking's sweet red whiskers.

But above all these several attitudes, the place is haunted by a sense of the hugeness and fertility and brute strength of Asia. Not so long ago a writer could observe that England had cut a tree in China as a woodsman cuts a tree—"to mark it for felling at a convenient opportunity."

In Hong Kong today, with Asia already flooding through Queen Victoria Street and Waterloo Road, and with six hundred million more Chinese over there across the hills, and with the whole place a tumult of Asian energy and noise, and constantly threatened by Asian power, and riddled with Asian ideologies—here in Hong Kong you cannot help wondering how ambitious a woodsman China will be when she reaches the summit of her power, and how many of us old elms she is going to notch for firewood.

The Visitors

THE little green men from Mars disguised themselves as normal young Canadians, and set out for a supermarket.

These places, they'd been told, were a predominant feature of the civilization they were studying, and part of their assignment was to bring back a detailed report of what they found there.

Because of his superior intelligence, the leader of the group elected to report upon the women's magazines.

"It takes a genius to understand a woman's mind," he said with his usual modesty.

But even his genius was flummoxed after the first five minutes. However, being a conscientious type, he read on with great determination.

He read about the "Wonder of Well-Being." He read about how to combat childbirth, insanity, and how to handle alcoholic husbands.

Under the heading of "What's New in Medicine," he read about a host of wonder drugs. (Not that he absorbed what he read. Indeed, when he had finished the article, he couldn't name or spell a single drug correctly. All that remained was a confused impression of horrible diseases and unsuspected dangers.)

He read about all the major killers, and how one American in four would die of this, and one in three would die of that. And, being a nervous type he soon was certain that he suffered from all of these diseases.

"A sickly but courageous people," he murmured, and to comfort himself he read an article about the joy of sexual loving and how very few were normal enough to achieve it.

Somewhat shaken and more than a little puzzled, he progressed to an article about aspirin. This tiny pill, this wonder drug, he read, was devoured by Americans — and presumably Canadians — at the rate of 500 a second, and to the tune of $48,000,000 annually.

"Curiouser and curiouser," he muttered, and picked up another magazine to read its feature article "The Diet that Gives Peace of Mind."

This diet was for hard-pressed executives, he learned. For scientific surveys had proved that peace of mind and peace of stomach were definitely inter-related.

"How can they have peace of mind when they read so much about disease?" he asked himself.

However, turning the page, he found that peace of mind was not a question of diet. It could be achieved by following Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Obediently, he followed Dr. N. V. P., for at least a thousand words, including a sudden jump to page 67.

As a sequel to that, he read an article which stated very firmly that true security and peace of mind would never come to anyone whose childhood had been warped by slightly crooked teeth.

Marital problems, miracle drugs, energizers, tranquilizers, the dangers of premature old age — the conscientious little man from Mars read them all.

"How'd ya make out?" his companions asked him on the homeward trip.

He shook his little green head. "A peculiar people. Most peculiar."

And then — just a shade hysterically — he began to laugh and laugh.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

How to Gain Weight

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

When I publish a column on reducing weight, a number of people, who describe themselves as distressingly skinny, write asking what they can do to put on some fat.

Obviously, the thing to do is to eat each day plenty of rich food, with a lot of cream and butter hidden in soups, mashed potato, cooked vegetables and desserts. The persons should take glasses of milk with much cream added, and they should put much cream in their coffee, on cereal, fruit, puddings, apple sauce, pies, and wherever it can be added. At home, the thin person should have a pitcher of cream beside his plate.

His food should contain extra butter. For instance, his eggs can be scrambled with butter. He should use much butter on his bread and on baked potatoes and other foods. When he has a lamb chop or pork chop, or any piece of fat meat, he should eat the fat. Persons who find it very hard to eat much at the table can add many calories to their diet by quickly gulping down twice a day a rich egg-milk with ice cream stirred into it.

Perhaps the main difficulty with many thin persons is that they have little appetite, and when they sit down to dinner with some desire to eat they quickly fill up and then they can hardly take another bite.

As many a thin person has said to me, "After a few mouthfuls, I feel as if I had eaten a whole goose." Many thin persons are almost certain to fill up quickly if they go out to dinner, perhaps at a restaurant. They cannot start with a soup or some shrimps, because even the soup is likely to so fill them up that then they cannot touch their entree or their meat.

Many thin persons like to eat very slowly, but often this makes things worse for them. Many would do better to take out their watch and try to get their meal down in a few minutes before they turn against it.

That thin persons can be fattened and made to look immensely better and to have better health was shown me years ago by my old chief. When expense was no object, he would take a thin sickly-looking woman and put her in a certain sanatorium which in those days had wonderful food. He would get a cheery nurse to encourage the woman to eat, and to see to it that she did consume the food that was put on her tray.

The woman complained for a few days of feeling stuffed, but usually she soon adjusted to the large amount of food. The nurse had to see to it that each day the woman's bowels moved well. If they did not, there might come nausea and abdominal distention and pain. An enema of warm salty water was the best cure for this.

What interested me much was that the only women who did not gain weight on this regimen were those who had some mental distress. I can still remember the sad-looking heiress who had been married for her money by an adventurer. When he practically deserted her and seldom came home, she became depressed. She never could put on a pound.

I remember, also, a young woman much in love with a man whom her parents despised; also, a beautiful college girl in love with a merry scamp who would never get around to proposing. Neither of these fretting women could gain any weight.

All of which shows that many persons stay thin because they worry the weight off faster than they can put it on. They are too tense, too active, or too self-conscious.

There is another peculiar fact about people, and this suggests that in our brain we have a sort of tiny regulator, like a thermostat, which keeps our weight steady at a certain point on the scale, no matter how much we eat.

To illustrate: when I was young and up to about the age of 40, I ate all I could with the hope of filling out, but never gained a pound. I remained thin. Then my "thermostat" seemed to change its setting so that my weight suddenly went up five pounds, and then remained at the new level. A few years later, the "thermostat's" setting changed suddenly again, and later, again, and since the last change I have had to remain on a reducing diet to keep from getting stout!

CHINA ALMOST RECOGNIZED?

OTTAWA (CP)—M. J. Coldwell says Canada intended to recognize Communist China in 1950 but for some unexplained reason did not. The national CCF leader told a church group Wednesday night "only the private papers of Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent or L. B. Pearson will reveal why there wasn't such a recognition afforded once the Chinese civil war ended."

Top Ten in Shrubs For Fall Planting

With shrub planting time upon us, and big empty spaces in new gardens which were so recently colorful with annuals, gardeners are asking for a list of the "top ten" shrubs. Nothing is more difficult than to select the "best" out of the hundreds known to horticulture. Unavoidably, any individual's choice is colored by personal preference, but those in this brief list are included also from the standpoint of ease of culture, suitability to the average size garden, availability and general usefulness over more than one season of the year.

One of the tallest of the shrubs is Euonymus europaeus (the spindle tree), with roundish leaves and brilliantly colored fruit which lasts well into fall.

Azaleas have two seasons of beauty in the garden—brilliant flowers during May, and colorful foliage in fall. These are usually planted in spring, though if you know the varieties you want, they may be put in now.

Viburnum tinus (laurestinus) may seem a trite suggestion, but there is no denying the fact of its beautiful glossy foliage and pink buds from October on. Even though the white flowers may fall to open in frosty weather, the shrub is well worth the space.

Sparganium junceum (Spanish broom) is scarcely without flowers from early July to November, and they are fragrant. Its naked green stems can be partly masked by an evergreen shrub such as rosemary.

Fragrance should have a place in every garden, and rosemary has it all year round. Planted near a path where it is touched lightly in passing, it becomes a valued asset, quite apart from its flowers in June. The five remaining shrubs must be listed briefly: Hamamelis mollis, richly fragrant blossoms in winter; Acer (maple) palmatum atropurpureum (purple-leafed leaves); Perowskia atriplicifolia, foliage grey-green, blue flowers in August; Escallonia laevis, evergreen leaves and pink flowers in summer; and the lowly Cotoneaster horizontalis as a flat growing shrub for either a wall or a rock—red berries.

Appointments Made To Quebec Upper House By Duplessis

QUEBEC (CP)—Health Minister Albin Paquette and John P. Rowatt of Montreal have been appointed to the 24-seat Legislative Council-Upper House of the provincial Legislature.

Premier Duplessis announced the appointments today after a meeting of the cabinet.

Mr. Paquette resigned his seat in the Legislature Aug. 20. Mr. Rowatt is the president of the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal and until recently was chairman of the Protestant committee of the public education council.

Mr. Paquette, who is still Quebec's minister of health, will sit for the division of Rougemont.

Mutual Advantage In Merger—Chant

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant supports city-Saanich amalgamation.

"I am sure it would be to the mutual advantage of Victoria and Saanich to grow and prosper together," said the Victoria MLA.

"The two of them speaking with one voice will carry much more weight and will go farther together than separately," more weight and will go farther together than separately.

"Victoria and Saanich should think positively of the benefits and not negatively of the problems," he said.

Victoria's other MLA, George Gregory, declined comment on the issue.

Three public meetings on amalgamation have been planned following presentation of the Deutsch report recommending a merger of the two municipalities.

Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association scheduled a meeting for next Tuesday, at 8 p.m., in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall.

The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce's amalgamation committee plans to hold a forum November 25.

A third public meeting is planned for November 27, sponsored by the capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada and the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market held narrowly to the higher side on the Board of Trade today.

India was in the market again for another 350,000 bushels, bringing its purchases for the week to more than 4,000,000. Still more buying on that account was expected.

Flax uncovered only light offerings and prices were fairly steady although there were periods of irregularity. There also was evidence of modest export demand. Rye showed hesitation during mostly local trade.

Overnight export wheat loadings included: Japan 760,000, United Kingdom 470,000, The Netherlands 360,000, West Germany 120,000, Italy 110,000 and Belgium 40,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were down 1/2 cent except for No. 4 northern which dropped 1 1/2 from Wednesday.

B.C. Salmon Prices Boost Catch Value

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's catch of sea fish and shellfish in September and the first nine months of 1958 declined sharply in volume from the corresponding periods last year.

However, the landed value of the catch in the two periods soared as a result of higher prices in the salmon fishery in B.C.

The September catch declined to 176,431,000 pounds from 206,306,000 a year ago and dropped in the nine months to 1,346,270,000 pounds from 1,582,081,000.

The landed value of September's catch rose to $14,891,000 from $8,509,000 a year ago. In the nine months the value increased to $34,750,000 from $27,953,000.

Landings in B.C. dropped in the month to 50,921,000 pounds from 53,440,000, while the landed value rose to a record $9,993,000 from $3,500,000. In the nine months landings declined to 319,417,000 pounds from 428,749,000 and the value increased to $42,617,000 from $27,953,000.

Hilton Eyes Vancouver For New Hotel

MONTREAL (CP)—Conrad Hilton, president of the world-wide chain of Hilton hotels, said Wednesday his Canadian subsidiary is studying the possibility of opening or operating more hotels in Canada.

Toronto, he told a press conference, has a surplus of rooms but Vancouver appears to need a new hotel.

"I think there is room for another hotel in Vancouver. I would like to operate there but whether we will go there or anywhere else in Canada will depend on a survey of different centres and consultation with CNR president Donald Gordon."

The subsidiary, Hilton of Canada Ltd., operates Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel for the CNR. A Hilton-CNR agreement calls for one party to consult the other before deciding to build a new hotel.

Asian Relief Main Purpose Of World Tour

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, arriving here today on the first stage of his world tour, said he hopes he can do "something constructive" toward raising economic standards in Asian member nations of the Commonwealth.

"The emphasis and the accent is on Asia," he said in describing the purpose of his 54-day tour. The largest section—three weeks—will be spent in the five Asian Commonwealth countries.

He told a press conference at London airport that he would make no attempt at reaching formal agreements in talks with government leaders during his journey.

His purpose was to learn about the problems of other countries, appreciate their position and do something constructive through suggestion and in consultation within the Commonwealth to raise economic standards and equalize opportunities.

INCREASE IN AID

The prime minister noted Canada's recent announcement that it will increase its annual Colombo plan contributions to $50,000,000 from $35,000,000 in each of the next three years.

The prime minister was to attend a reception this afternoon given by Canadian High Commissioner George Drew and tonight he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were to dine at 10 Downing Street with Prime Minister and Lady Macmillan.

At his press conference, the prime minister said that immigration is likely to be one of the topics discussed in his meetings with Asian leaders. The Canadian immigration system had been based on consultation among countries involved. He said various parts of the world are "not too anxious" to have their people emigrate, preferring to keep them at home to aid national development.

After talks at Downing Street Friday the Diefenbakers will take a short break to visit Scotland and the home of the prime minister's grandparents at Kildonan, Sutherlandshire.

B.C. Won't Charge Tourists For Campsites

If the provincial government made a charge for use of B.C. campsites, the public would demand better facilities. Recreation and Conservation Minister E. C. Westwood told Auto Courts and Resort Owners' Association in Vancouver Wednesday.

Many resort owners had urged the step on grounds the free camping areas compete unfairly with their businesses.

The minister said if a charge was made, competition with resorts would be more intense, because the camps would then have to have hot and cold running water and showers.

2 Hunters Drowned

EDMONTON (CP) — Two hunters were drowned in Smoky Lake, 60 miles northeast of Edmonton, Wednesday, when they lost hold of their overturned boat while aid was on the way. They were identified as Steve Hunchak and John Onyschuk, both about 35, of Redwater.

'FAIR' LABOR LAWS URGED

NANAIMO (CP)—G. Fitzpatrick, Dunn of Victoria, president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce, says conciliation boards should be eliminated and compulsory binding arbitration established where health and safety of the public is jeopardized. Speaking to the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Dunn said good industrial relations cannot be created by legislation, but legislation is necessary to ensure a proper balance of rights. He said labor unions and other employee groups have responsibilities to the public. Labor laws should be amended to abolish special union privileges.

Three U.S. Scientists Win Nobel Prize in Medicine

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Three American scientists won the 1958 Nobel prize in medicine and physiology today for solving some of the basic riddles of heredity. Their discoveries were credited by a member of the prize-awarding body with opening new avenues in cancer research. The winners are Drs. George Wells Beadle, 55, of the California Institute of Technology; E. L. Tatum, 49, of New York's Rockefeller Institute, and Joshua Lederberg, 33, of the University of Wisconsin. The Royal Caroline Institute of Medicine said half of the $41,420 prize will go jointly to Beadle and Tatum "for their discovery that genes act by regulating specific chemical processes." The other half of the prize went to Lederberg "for his discoveries concerning genetic recombination and the organization of the genetic material of bacteria." "Genetic recombination" is a term for sexual fertilization in the bacterial world. Lederberg found that from the geneticists' point of view, "this corresponds exactly to the normal sexual fertilization in higher organisms."

Describing the work of the prize winners, Prof. Torbjörn Caspersson of the Caroline Institute said the research of Beadle and Tatum in the early 1940s "led to the discovery that the individual gene acts by directing individual steps in the course of chemical synthesis in the cell. All the substances in the cell are built up step by step in a long series of synthesizing processes." "The individual steps are governed by individual genes by their regulation of the production of specific enzymes for each separate step."

New Canada Envoy Named

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican member of the President Eisenhower Wednesday picked Richard B. Wigglesworth, 67, who is retiring as an ambassador to Canada.

Wigglesworth, in Congress since 1929, succeeds Livingston T. Merchant who is being reassigned as assistant state secretary for European affairs. Merchant held that position before he went to Ottawa in 1956. Eisenhower gave both Wigglesworth and Merchant recess appointments. Formal nominations will go to the Senate when Congress reconvenes in January.

Schultz 'Donations' Queried

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson Wednesday questioned the method used by a timber engineer now charged with bribery and conspiracy in making contributions to Social Credit party campaign funds.

Mr. Justice Wilson noted Schultz had testified of a commission arrangement with Gray for payment of $500 a month to retain his services for public relations work in connection with the license. Gray was to keep half of the money and the other half was to go to Social Credit campaign funds, less Gray's expenses.

What Schultz actually did, the justice said, was pay campaign funds out of monies paid him by timber companies employing his engineering firm for work on timber licence applications.

argument that campaign funds were a necessary part of democracy and everyone was entitled to choose the party to which he would contribute.

FOR SAME PURPOSE
He paid money he got for forest management licence work "and I would ask you to consider whether the funds he entrusted were not meant for the same purpose—to get forest management licences."

At another point the judge noted criticisms by B.C. Forest counsel Walter Owen against Attorney-General Bonner for alleged delay in laying the charges.

Why, asked the judge, did Charles Schultz, if he was an altruistic subscriber to party funds, set up a special fund. Why did he not contribute by personal cheque. There was no necessity for employing an agent in the form of Gray to make his contribution.

The attorney-general had been informed of the case in December, 1955, but the prosecution was not launched until some two years later.

PAID TO MINISTER?
The justice then added that if it was found that the donor paid funds through an agent to Delay may have caused hardship to B.C. Forest and, in fact, to the Crown. But the case before the jury was the thing to be decided, "not the rights or wrongs of the actions of the attorney-general."

The judge told the jury that the evidence of George Davenport, former Schultz company accountant, was of considerable importance. The latter had testified that part of the firm's retainers were earmarked for Sommers, though he knew nothing personally about funds actually passed to the former minister.

Seven Sub-Killers for Esquimalt In 'New Navy' Plans

Crescent, Atha-B, Cayuga to East Coast

By MONTE ROBERTS

Early next year the RCN Pacific Command will have a homogeneous, seven-ship anti-submarine squadron with a "hunter-killer" potential unsurpassed among the world's surface anti-submarine groups.

Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer, Pacific Coast, revealed today an increase in the strength of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, from six to seven ships.

Three older-type destroyers will be transferred to the Atlantic Command, and replaced with four modern, St. Laurent-class anti-submarine destroyer escorts.

The changeover in ships will take place from January to April.

Coming here from the east coast are HMC Ships Assiniboine, Saguenay, Ottawa and St. Laurent, the "lead ship" of Canada's new anti-sub navy.

Leaving for the east coast will be HMCS Crescent (senior ship of the Second Canadian at present), and the improved Tribal-class destroyers HMC Ships Athabaskan and Cayuga.

RADIOACTIVITY CHECK MADE ON U.K. FREIGHTER

A British freighter which discharged cargo at Victoria Monday will be examined at Vancouver by a nuclear expert to see if one of its holds is contaminated.

Ss. Loch Avon brought a cobalt bomb to Vancouver for transshipment to Ottawa. The bomb was in No. 2 hold, which was not opened when the ship discharged cargo here.

The nuclear expert is flying from Ottawa to check out the ship. Longshoremen were temporarily withdrawn from work Wednesday when reports of possible contamination were spread.

AMALGAMATION REPORT

This is the second of 10 parts presenting the verbatim report made by Dr. J. J. Deutsch to a Victoria-Saanich committee in which amalgamation of the two municipalities was recommended. The report is being printed in a serial form in the interests of voters who may cast ballots on the question.

THE COST OF SERVICES IN TWO MUNICIPALITIES:

The financial advisors to the Committee, Ismay, Boiston, Dunn & Co., have prepared comprehensive and detailed financial statistics on a comparable basis which has enabled the committee to make a careful analysis of the financial situation in each of the two municipalities.

The following is a summary of the recent trends in expenditures shown, as far as possible, on a comparable basis.

TOTAL EXPENDITURES FROM CURRENT REVENUES

	Thousands of dollars		Dollars per capita		Per $1,000 of Net Assessment
	Victoria	Saanich	Victoria	Saanich	Victoria	Saanich
1953	4,199	1,201	80	37	—	—
1956	4,855	1,586	89	41	55	31
1957	5,152	1,738	93	43	57	32
1958*	5,600	2,150	100	51	61	38

* As per budget provision for the year ended Dec. 31, 1958.

It will be seen that total expenditures from current revenues in Victoria were substantially greater than in Saanich, but those of Saanich have been rising more rapidly due to the greater increases in population. Between 1953 and 1958 total expenditures in Victoria rose by 33% while those of Saanich rose by nearly 80%.

The significant differences in the per capita expenditures reflect in part the costs associated with the central position of Victoria and the concentration of commercial and industrial activity in that city. Furthermore, total expenditures in Victoria per $1,000 of net assessment are approximately 60% greater than in Saanich. This difference is due, partly to the larger amount of exempt property in Victoria, and partly to a greater outlay on services.

In Victoria 38% of the gross property assessment is exempt from municipal taxation compared with 29% in Saanich. This difference arises in considerable part out of the fact that provincial property which is almost entirely located in Victoria is exempt from municipal taxation. The assessments used for the calculations in the foregoing table were prepared by the Assessors of the respective municipalities and have been adjusted to reflect an estimate of the application of equalized assessments in accordance with the requirements of the Provincial Assessment Commissioner. These adjustments were made in order to enable a valid comparison to be drawn between the two municipalities and between each of the years shown. The reasons for the differences in the expenditures of the two municipalities are indicated more specifically by the respective costs of the particular services.

The considerable differences in the expenditures of the two municipalities on particular services reflect in large measure the differing circumstances between a central city with its concentration of business activities, and a predominantly residential suburban municipality which is rapidly expanding. In some cases the differences are the result of different policies and of different methods of allocating costs between the general taxpayer and the direct beneficiary. The costs of general administration in the two municipalities, shown under General Government, are substantially the same in relation to net assessment after taking into account the higher cost of Victoria's

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

There are some red faces in the legislative press gallery this week.

The scribes planned a bumper farewell luncheon at the Union Club for Peter Bruton, soon returning to his native New Zealand, and overlooked only one detail—they forgot to invite the guest of honor.

Soon after 12 noon, frantic phone calls went out in search of Peter. His name was belatedly in every hotel lobby in town. Courthouse officials sought him in the Sloan Royal Commission, the Supreme Court and the County Court. All too no avail. Peter could not be found and the luncheon in his honor proceeded without him.

Where was Peter? Why, munching a hamburger in a downtown cafeteria!

I see the provincial government is inviting tenders for the removal of:

One tree, maple, at the Legislative Buildings.

One tree, maple, and one tree, holly, at Government House.

Speaking of government, Mrs. R. J. Talmadge of Beach Drive is seeking that delicious poem on the Magna Carta recited in the droll Lancashire dialect by Stanley Holloway. Here is the concluding verse, adapted for local use:

An' it's through that there Magna Carta

As were signed by the barons of old,
That in B.C. today we can do as we like,
As long as we do as we're told.

The other verses can be found at Victoria public library in a collection of poems fronted by Albert and the Lion.

Private enterprise department: Five city firms submitted quotations for a typewriter wanted in the city detectives' office.

Finger prints are now being examined.

That Town Meeting of Canada to be staged at Victoria's Britannia Legion Hall Friday evening is the survival of a custom started in England during the reign of Harold the Saxon in the 11th century.

This was the Witan Age, at which the King and his subjects met to discuss problems of the day in open forum. It seems the meetings were suppressed by William the Conqueror after his notorious 1066 invasion, but were later revived.

The Pilgrim Fathers took the idea to New England, says Arthur Helps, founder and moderator of Town Meeting, and the congressional library in Washington refers to it as the earliest form of democracy on the American continent.

$20 Million Company Setup For Wenner-Gren Project

A $20,000,000 company has been incorporated to launch the vast hydro power development proposed by the Wenner-Gren interests in the Rocky Mountain trench area of British Columbia.

Papers were filed with the registrar of companies office today as the first legal step following Premier Bennett's recent announcement that the huge project is going ahead.

Name of the new firm is Peace River Power Development Company. Incorporation was done by the Vancouver law firm of Campney, Owen and Murphy.

Documents related to registration of the new firm did not specify who would be directors.

Objects of the new company take in a vast range of operation. Briefly, the company proposes to take all steps necessary to ascertain extent of natural resources in any part of the province, and take all steps leading to development.

Such exploratory work may be done "alone or in conjunction with others."

ALL KINDS OF ENERGY

Added objectives are to "acquire, and develop" such natural resources, alone or with others, and to carry on any business or businesses in connection with acquisition and development of natural resources.

It is stipulated the company proposes to "generate, transmit and distribute all kinds of energy."

The documents also state the company proposes to acquire rights, licences, concessions, grants, decrees, powers, privileges, surveys, reports, plans and other information and documents which may be considered useful.

It was noted the incorporation does not permit sale of shares to the public.

Canadians Beat Dickens Out of Britons

Canadians and Americans are more enthusiastic over Charles Dickens' works today than the people of England, says actor-lecturer John Greaves.

Mr. Greaves should know. He has given 650 Dickensian lecture recitals in all three countries since the war and will give his 651st lecture before the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel Friday at noon.

During his 40 odd years as a lecturer he has given literally thousands of character readings from Dickens.

"I am sorry to say the people of England are not as keen as they used to be," said jolly white-haired Mr. Greaves interviewed on his arrival in Victoria this morning. "But Canadians and Americans, young and old, are as enthusiastic as ever."

At the University of British Columbia Wednesday night, Mr. Greaves was warned not to expect a big crowd because of counter attractions.

"Instead, I had an audience of nearly 800 students and there weren't enough chairs to go round."

Householders had better have a full cookie jar on hand when the witches and hobgoblins come to call. Biggest and noisiest blowout will be staged at the Memorial Arena from 8 to 12 p.m., where some 4,000 youngsters will set the joint jumping with rock 'n' roll music, hula hoop contests, skating and dancing on the ice.

There'll be special prizes for the best costumes, and for dancing, while outside the arena a monster bonfire will be burning for the roasting and toasting of weiners, corn, potatoes and marshmallows.

The jamboree will be floodlit, and more light will come from a big fireworks display. Youngsters will get in for 50 cents. Adults can go free.

Special prizes

Mr. and Mrs. Greaves and Mr. and Mrs. Aseltine were met off the Vancouver steamer by Mrs. Dorothy Hewitt White, secretary of the Dickens Fellowship of Victoria. Mr. Greaves will be guest of honor at a fellowship reception at the home of E. F. Watkinson, president, at 565 Marfield, tonight at 8.

Friday night he will speak at Victoria College.

Lions Club district governor Louis L. Valentine, of Mount Vernon, Washington, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the local chapter Friday in the Empress Hotel.

James Patrick Bold boldly denied boldness when he appeared in city police court today charged with being drunk in a public place.

When the clerk called the accused he neglected to give the full name and Bold spoke up, "James PATRICK Bold—Bold by name but not by nature."

Magistrate H. C. Hall asked for his plea.

"Under the Liquor Act I gotta plead guilty," Bold said.

He was fined $10 or three days in jail.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Sputnik III carrier rocket will be high in the north-east sky at 6:27 p.m. today, according to Dominion Astrophysical Observatory officials, and will appear again Friday night in the low northwest sky at 6:21 p.m.

Wally Bates was the life of the lunch hour at HMCS Naden chief's mess Wednesday.

He drew a perfect 29 crib hand—his first in 13 years at the game.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What significance does the camel's head have on the face of the Fort Street side of the Campbell Building, on Douglas? R.M.C.

A. It was a trademark for the late druggist, D. E. Campbell, who died in 1937. He built the structure. The camel motif was chosen simply because it was close to "Campbell" in sound. The Campbell Building was erected in 1912.

Q. What is the breakdown in Canada concerning cars and people? M.M.

A. Density of passenger cars today is a car for every five persons, and a motor vehicle for every 3.6 persons.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

METRO WILL BE BACK IN ACTION... HE HOPES

First in line to autograph cast on broken leg of Edmonton forward Metro Prystai was Victoria Cougar coach Pat Egan. Prystai, who broke left leg for third time in less than year while playing against Cougars

Tuesday, still hopes to resume professional hockey career next season. His chances are considered slim but student nurse Miss G. Wood is making sure Metro gets best of care during stay in hospital.

SPORTSCRIPT

BY

Metro Prystai has reservations about certain things. The number "four" is an example.

But playing hockey again is not one of his reservations. The Edmonton Flyers' winger, a veteran of 10 National Hockey League campaigns who Tuesday suffered a broken bone in his left leg for the third time in less than a year, has no qualms about playing professional hockey again.

The chunky forward has definite views on the matter. "Heck," he said, "I'm too young to retire."

Ordinarily, hospitals and hospital rooms leave me cold. But room 454 in the Royal Jubilee had a cheery atmosphere about it on this particular October evening. It might be because this native of Yorkton, Sask., a part-time philosopher, is a full-time optimist.

When others regard Prystai's injury as "most unfortunate," Metro passes it off as "one of the breaks of the game." When sad references are made to his broken tibia, Prystai responds with witticism. It isn't bravado, either.

It might seem ironic that Prystai had to wait until he reached the minor pro ranks before suddenly running into a rash of bad breaks. NHL scouts hung the "can't miss" label on Prystai when he played with the Moose Jaw Canucks during the years they ruled western junior hockey in the mid-40s.

There Were No Stopovers for Metro

The scouts, for once, were right. There were no stopovers for Metro. He stepped straight into big time with Chicago Black Hawks.

The record book shows Prystai as having missed only 22 league games in 10 years. He played in 659 and only minor ailments caused him to miss as many as he did.

He doesn't wish to argue with the record book, but he feels there's a slight discrepancy in the number of games he appeared in during his first season in the NHL. That was in 1947-48, the days of a 60-game schedule. The book shows him as having played in 54 games.

Metro doesn't remember missing any games. "Those were the days when they had a rule that if a player didn't get on the ice, he wasn't given credit as having played. I dressed for all of the games," he said.

The 175-pounder was perhaps one of the most popular players ever to play for Detroit Red Wings. There were other distinctions, too. In the 1951-52 playoffs, for example, he was the leading point-getter in the Stanley Cup battles.

The "can't miss" kid never quite blossomed into a great scorer, however. It might be a disappointment in an otherwise meritorious career, but even experienced hockey men are at a loss to explain why.

His best season, from a standpoint of production, was in 1949-50 when he scored 29 goals and 22 assists. He scored 20 goals the following season and 21 the year after that. Those were his only 20-goals-or-better campaigns.

All in all, he scored 150 goals in 10 seasons.

Ken Always Got the Same Answer

Ken Reardon, former NHL great as a defenceman and now an executive of Montreal Canadiens, always found Prystai's story a puzzling one.

"Whenever Prystai's team came to Montreal," Reardon once told me, "I always used to ask various persons at the Forum, 'Who do you like out there?'"

"I always got the same answer... 'Prystai.'"

"You never got the same answer from the record book," Reardon said.

Prystai's movements on the ice have always been a pleasure to watch. When other players "fight" the puck, "Meatball" manipulates it smoothly and gracefully. He was always a two-way performer and his urgent back-checking duties were, perhaps, one of the reasons he never became a great goal-getter.

Metro will be 31 years old next Friday. He still feels he has a few good years ahead of him, but not this one.

He also has a feeling that four has suddenly become his unlucky number.

His troubles began in Detroit about Christmas last year. A hard shot caught him on the ankle and cracked a bone. After recovering, he was sent to Edmonton to round into shape.

He was playing his fourth game with the Flyers when he broke his tibia (shin bone). He hobbled around in a cast for the next six months. Prystai wasn't ready to play until Flyers made their first jaunt to the coast. He played his first game in Vancouver. Games in New Westminster and Seattle followed.

Game No. 4, for Prystai, was the one against the Cougars. "I guess," Meatball reflected, "four isn't my lucky number."

Oaks Nail Down Playoff Berth

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

This should be the Oak Bay High School senior soccer team's motto as the Oaks prepare for their fourth clash in five years with Victoria High School for the city championship. They have lost out on their three previous trips into the final.

Their playoff position secured after rolling to a 3-0 shutout over Milnes Landing, Wednesday, the Oaks will meet the tough Vic High squad in a best of three series starting at Vic High, November 7. The second game of the series will be at Oak Bay, November 12. A toss-up will decide the host for the third match, if necessary, on November 17.

Vic High wound up its league action Wednesday with a 5-2 victory over Esquimalt High. Although the Esquimalt crew hit back hard in the second half, the Vics had too much power and finished their schedule with five straight wins.

In the third game, Mount View took a close decision as they nipped Mount Douglas, 2-1. Alec Anderson and Glen Robbins scored for Mount View, while Dave Hill replied for Mount Douglas.

John Youson led Oak Bay with two goals and Bill Baker picked up a single tally against Milnes Landing.

Vic High's scoring was taken care of by Allan Glen, with two goals; Dave Rees, Tom Collett, Jim Peters and Alec Lacey. Both of Esquimalt's tallies came from the toe of Bob Fraser in the second half.

With a playoff position already secured, Vic High coach Harry Roney was looking ahead to the playoff series and rested stars Robin Barnes and Jim Peters in the second half.

Benning Cup To Mrs. Foster

Mrs. R. Foster, putting together rounds of 80 and 76, captured the Benning Cup competition for ladies of the Victoria Golf Club with a 36-hole net aggregate total of 156.

Mrs. Foster's 76 was the best second-round total while Mrs. C. L. McLaughlin led after the first 18 with a net 74.

Mrs. McLaughlin gained some consolation with a victory in turkey competition Tuesday, topping the "C" division. Mrs. J. L. Proctor won the turkey in the silver division while Mrs. R. McDonald topped the bronze division.

Good Entry Expected For Road Race Events

Pavement pounders will be back in competition Wednesday at Victoria High School in the annual three-event Canadian Legion road races.

The event will be a two-mile grind for juniors (under 16), a two and one-half miler for intermediates (under 18) and a three and one-half mile open grind.

With the entry deadline set for Monday and 12 trophies on the line, a large list of entries is expected.

HMCS Venture, Canadian Scottish, Shawinigan Lake Boys' School and most area high schools have entered runners and further entries are expected from University School, HMCS Naden, the PPCLI and Royal Roads.

Races will all start and finish on the Vic High cinder track.

Two Shawinigan Lake athletes, winners last year and moving up a notch this season, are strong threats to win.

MOVED UP

Fred Waters, last season's junior champ, has moved up to the intermediate class, and David Ross has gone from intermediate, which he won last year, into the open event.

Intermediate John Cliff, junior Tom Burgess and open runners Simon Princep and Jim Robertson are expected to make a strong showing in the black and gold uniforms of Vic High.

Top Canadian Scottish entry is expected to be newcomer Jack O'Hanley.

Further information may be obtained from Gordon Hartley at Victoria High School.

ROBERTS VOTED

Feeling Much Better?

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—"I felt better and was throwing better."

That's how Robin Roberts summarized his 1958 pitching record of 17 victories and 14 losses that won him the title of "Comeback Player of the Year" in the National League.

Roberts got 59 of the 98 votes by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the annual Associated Press poll. Bob Friend of Pittsburgh Pirates got 21 votes and Bobby Thomson of Chicago Cubs 13.

Roberts, 32-year-old hurler with Philadelphia Phillies, referred to his dismal 10-22 record for 1957 and said it "definitely made me a candidate for the comeback honor, didn't it?"

He added: "I suppose I made a comeback this year because I felt better and was throwing better. I wasn't throwing any different stuff — not too much anyhow."

Roberts' 1957 mark was the worst in his career. He won 20 or more games for six straight years before dropping to a 19-18 mark in 1956. In 1957 his earned run average soared to 4.07. But his 1958 performance trimmed this to 3.27.

Roberts is here to look after his seafood packing and restaurant business.

Habs Thump Leafs, 5-0; Rangers, Bruins In Tie

By CANADIAN PRESS.

Toronto Maple Leafs took a 5-0 trouncing from Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night but the evening shouldn't be scored as a total loss for the last-place Leafs.

If they were watching closely they received a valuable lesson in how National Hockey League games should be played. The Canadiens gave a stylish demonstration.

In other NHL action, Boston Bruins and New York Rangers battled to a 2-2 tie which vaulted them into another tie for second place, seven points behind Canadiens.

NO FATIGUE

The Toronto game was the fourth in five nights for Canadiens but they didn't show a trace of fatigue. Since Saturday they've won two, tied one and lost one.

Skating fast and passing smoothly, Habs hit for three goals in the first period and added one in each of the last two periods. Leafs couldn't get unwound under the tight checking and fine defensive work which kept Canadian goalie Jacques Plante out of trouble most of the night.

Dickie Moore, Bernie Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau, Tom Johnson and rookie Ab McDonald handled the scoring.

Rangers were robbed of their third win when Fleming Mackell took three swipes at a loose puck and finally blasted it past Ranger goalie Gump Worsley with eight seconds left in the third period.

CAMPBELL STARS IN NETS

Perhaps Laycoe Wasn't Gambling

Coach Hal Laycoe may have been gambling when he traded all-star goalie Bev Bentley to Seattle and picked up youthful Don Campbell to take care of the Royal nets.

It appeared that Laycoe may have pulled a boner when the Royal took an 8-5 beating at Winnipeg Tuesday night. But the rookie goaltender made it look as if Laycoe had filled an inside straight at Saskatoon Wednesday night.

Campbell turned in an outstanding performance as he outduelled the Quakers' brilliant Lucien Dechene and enabled the Royals to skate off with a 3-1 decision in the second game of their Prairie Division tour.

It was the first loss in five home games for the Quakers and left them in second place in the Prairie Division, one point behind the leading Edmonton Flyers.

Veteran Gordie Fashoway, Art Jones and Paul Masnick scored for New Westminster. Aggie Kukulowicz tallied the lone Saskatoon marker, spilling a shutout bid by Campbell.

Royals led 2-1 at the end of the first period and grabbed off the only goal of the third period after a scoreless second period.

Kukulowicz followed in to drive Sandy Hucul's rebound past Campbell at 2:17 of the first period to give Quakers a 1-0 lead. New Westminster made it 1-1 at 11:56 when Fashoway scored on a neat passing play with Hugh Barlow and George McAvoy. The Royals took a 2-1 lead at 18:52, Jones scoring from Pat Hannigan when the Saskatoon defence was sloppy in clearing.

PULLED DUCHENE

The scoreless second period saw both Dechene in the Saskatoon net and Campbell pull off several good saves. Play was even although Quakers were short-handed for six minutes, one of the penalties being a carryover from the first session.

Masnick made off 3-1 on an unassisted effort at 5:58 of the last period, getting a breakaway when players of both teams piled up at the New Westminster blue line.

Twice in the third period Quakers pulled Dechene and six attackers in but couldn't break through for a score.

Art's Needle Should Be as Sharp as Ever

There'll be a touch of the good old days at Victoria High School Saturday night. Art Chapman will be back. Chapman, for those whose hoop memories don't span more than a decade, was one of the all-time stars of Victoria basketball. He played centre on four of the city's senior Canadian championship teams between 1932 and 1946.

Even thinner on top than he was in his late playing days, Art won't be tossing his once-famous, long one-handers. This time he'll be riding the bench — coaching Vancouver Cloverleafs, who will tackle Victoria College Vikings in a senior "A" exhibition clash.

Coach of Cloverdale in the Mainland senior hoop loop last season, Chapman switched his allegiance to Cloverleafs and has launched a rebuilding campaign for the former Dominion champions.

His first moves were to talk Cloverdale scoring star Jack Lesiscien into making the trek to the Leafs with him and to pad his roster with a group of fast, eager youngsters.

Now Art is drilling the Leafs on the fast-breaking tactics which carried Victoria's Blue Ribbons and Dominos to the front of the country's court cavalcade.

His system bore its first fruit as Cloverleafs opened the season at Vancouver last Saturday. Lesiscien topped all scorers with 21 points and the Leafs clipped Hillside Dairy, 60-47.

Things didn't work out as well for college coach Bill Garner. His Vikings tangled with Alberni Athletics in their senior "A" debut last Friday and looked like future champions as they battled the more experienced A's to the wire before losing, 58-48.

But the roof fell in when Vikings went to Alberni for a return bout the following night. They were out of the running in five minutes and looked like potential also-rans as they absorbed an 80-29 thumping.

But Garner isn't giving up the ship. "That was just a bad night," he says. Since then he has added Ted Saunders, a two-year veteran with UBC Thunderbirds, to the club and drilled his charges on what not to do against senior "A" competition. Saunders, at six feet, four inches and 200 pounds, will give Vikings a portion of the height they sadly needed in their last weekend.

One thing seems certain to recall old times when the clubs step onto the floor at 8.30, following a preliminary tussle.

As a player, Chapman was one of the most accomplished referee-baiters in the business. His needle should be just as sharp when applied from the bench.

One-Year Suspension Handed Interior Pair

NELSON (CP) — Leo G. Atwell, president of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, announced Wednesday he has suspended Reg Betts, trainer for the Vernon Canadians, and player Irwin Mitchell of Cranbrook for one year.

Betts was suspended for striking a referee after getting a match misconduct penalty in an Okanagan Senior Hockey League game at Vernon Oct. 25, 1957. Mitchell was suspended for striking a referee in an intermediate playoff game between Cranbrook and Fernie March 8, 1957.

"A man on the bench," said Atwell, "should be trying to set an example for his team and not leading them in attacks well, president of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, announced Wednesday he has suspended Reg Betts, trainer for the Vernon Canadians, and player Irwin Mitchell of Cranbrook for one year.

"If we are to encourage and develop referees, we must protect and stand behind them."

SAFETY FIRST?

Britain's Car Hopes Wrecked

LONDON (AP) — Auto racing officials from 11 countries Wednesday night limited the engine capacity of Grand Prix cars to 1½ litres, effective January, 1961.

The present formula for cars of up to 2½ litres will continue in use until that date.

British representatives bitterly opposed the new ruling. Britain won seven Grand Prix races in the season just closed with Vanwall cars of 2½ litres.

The Commission Sportive Internationale also ruled future Grand Prix cars should have a minimum weight of 500 kilograms — about 1,100 pounds — without fuel.

MAKES IT SAFER

The new rule is a triumph for auto racing countries which believe the sport should be made safer.

"But this is a tremendous blow to us," said a British official. "It means that the Vanwall, one of the finest cars in the history of the sport, will be lost to the sport as we know it now."

The two-day London meeting was attended by delegates from France, Germany, Italy, the United States, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Monte Carlo, Mexico, Sweden and Britain.

TIGHT FIT

LEIGH, England (Reuters) — Yorkshire defeated Lancashire 16-15 in a Rugby League county championship game Wednesday.

LUCKY QUEBEC HUNTERS FACE MONOTONOUS DIET

QUEBEC (CP) — A preliminary survey conducted by the Quebec game department showed Tuesday about 1,500 moose were killed by hunters during the 12-day moose season compared with 1,167 last year. All regions reported a higher kill by an estimated record 10,000 hunters.

Most hunters were Canadians — Americans apparently favored the earlier season in Ontario where they hunted in large numbers.

Quebec province residents have one big problem: How to eat their game before Feb. 28. Under a new Quebec regulation to combat poaching, possession of moose meat after that date will be illegal.

LACK-LUSTRE BOUT

Fleet Franz Didn't Give Rory a Chance

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Rory Calhoun, who desperately wants a crack at the middleweight crown, admitted today his one-sided victory over pudgy Franz Suzina added little to his claim as Ray Robinson's logical contender.

The heavy-punching White Plains, N.Y., son of a Baptist minister, showed sincerity as he sat with his head bowed in his dressing room Wednesday night. He had just pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over the short-statured Suzina, who showed a disinclination to fight.

"I know I looked bad out there tonight," Calhoun said, "but it wasn't my fault really. I tried to make a fight of it but the German kept running away. We expected him to come in and fight."

The slim crowd of 2,178 showed their disapproval by booing lustily when the bout ended.

The three ring officials favored Calhoun on a rounds basis as follows: Referee Joe Palmer, 7-1-2; judge Harold McGrath, 9-1; and judge Charles Disalvo, 8-2.

Calhoun forced the fighting throughout the 10 rounds. His best punch was a swinging left hook to the body which made Suzina hold on in several rounds. But the 24-year-old Calhoun's best blow — his right — never found the German's chin.

Only Leonard Not Screaming

VANCOUVER (CP) — Al Nelson president of the B.C. Professional Golfers Association, said Wednesday he feels B.C. pros will make a "formal protest" against the exclusion of Stan Leonard from the Canada Cup golf team.

The selection of Toronto's Al Balding and Henry Martell, of Edmonton, as Canada's representatives in the international golf matches, November 20 to 23, at Mexico City, was announced Wednesday.

Nelson said failure to pick Leonard, "Canada's best player," was a disservice to the game and a back handed insult to the unattached Vancouver pro.

"I am sure our British Columbia pros will make some kind of formal protest. I just can't understand it. Stan has been such a wonderful goodwill ambassador for Canada."

NOT FAIR

Other Vancouver pros also expressed shock.

Leroy Goldworthy, Point Grey club pro, said: "It's a dirty deal. I don't think it's fair. Stan is one of the finest golfers in the world. Aren't we supposed to be sending our best golfers?"

Jock McKinnon, professional at Capilano, says the omission is "regrettable and unfortunate."

Leonard appeared not to be disappointed. "It's nice that someone else got a chance to play in that wonderful tournament. I've played in it five times now anyway."

He then left on a hunting trip.

DONCASTER, Eng. (Reuters) — A campaign for girl jockeys on English racetracks has been launched in this horse-racing centre.

Albert Cammidge, chairman of the Doncaster race committee, is behind the move.

"I don't see this as a part of racing yet but as a novelty," he said. "I think it would add interest, possibly as an extra race on a day's program."

Barons Buy Bad Boy

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons, of the American Hockey League, announced Wednesday they have obtained Bob Robertson, a 30-year-old defenseman, from the Providence Reds, for a player to be named later.

Robertson led the league in penalties last year with a total of 165 minutes.

Phil Watson, when he posed for a picture with goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley at New York Rangers' training camp last month, could have used this quotation from a 17th-century English poet.

"He that is thy friend indeed, he will help thee in thy need."

Watson, however, wasn't thinking about the poet (Richard Barnfield). He was figuring that a few kind words about his goaltender might produce perhaps better results than those when Watson used Worsley as his whipping-boy during the last two National Hockey League seasons.

At least that's the impression one got from training camp and during the first two weeks of the 1958-59 season. No longer was Watson calling

Worsley Also Did Some Campaigning

In other seasons when Rangers lost, it was usually Worsley's fault. At least Watson kept saying so. Near the end of last season Watson told the public that Worsley would finish the season with Rangers but that the job of goaltending would be wide open at training camp.

Worsley did some campaigning on his own. Before he reported to Niagara Falls, he told some reporters that he'd be in goal when Rangers opened the season.

"And you can tell Watson that, too," he snapped.

Midway through the training grind Watson announced that Worsley would start the season with Rangers.

"He's proven that he belongs

Hinton Selected Best Lion Rookie

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions guard Tommy Hinton has been named the club's rookie of the year by members of the press and radio.

The six-foot, 235-pounder came to the Lions from Louisiana Tech Bulldogs, where he was tackle and team captain.

Hinton played guard, tackle and defensive end through Lions' tough season in the Western Football Conference and went nearly 60 minutes every game.

Mixed Up?---Not Gale

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa boxer Gale Kerwin reiterated Wednesday he will take a "real good" six-month holiday from the ring and scoffed at suggestions by manager Al Lang that he's a mixed-up kid.

The 23-year-old Kerwin, who fought out of Valley Stream, N.Y., is back in Ottawa helping his father sell real estate. After winning the Canadian welterweight crown in September, he lost decisively to Frankie Ryff Oct. 3 at Washington in his last bout, his fifth on Friday night television.

Lang, told Tuesday at Rochester, N.Y., about Kerwin's decision, blamed Percy Kerwin,

Canadian Mineral Output Seen Tripled in 25 Years

Canada's vast underground mineral warehouse is ready to burst into an explosion of growth which experts feel may triple the nation's mineral output in the next 25 years.

The major emphasis on exploration of recent years has uncovered new deposits of iron, lead, zinc, copper, lithium, columbium, tantalum, manganese, uranium and two years new into operation.

At the moment Canada leads the world in the production of asbestos and nickel; is second in aluminum, platinum, lead and zinc; third in gold and silver; and fourth in iron ore. The day is not far distant when Canada will lead the world in uranium production and jump to second place in the world production of iron ore.

It is estimated that by 1983 Canada's mineral industry will account for 33 per cent of the nation's export.

In Manitoba, Withering Lake and Herb Lake are centres of attraction. International Nickel and Rio Canadian, Hudson Bay Mining, Sherritt Gordon, Parmlac, and many other companies have been making interesting finds since 1960 decided to go ahead with its Monk-Thompson project. Major 6 Gulf Sulphur Corporation is in the area.

Lake Mines—has underway a major exploration and development program. The original companies in the syndicate included Noranda Mines, Teck-Hughes, New Dickenson, Crospat and Consolidate Goldfields.

These syndicate operations have been typical of exploration in the past year. Mining companies have been forced to carry out more extensively to indicate initial areas of promise (anomalies) which are then followed up and checked by ground work.

In the Lac La Ronge area a minor staking rush followed aerial survey by the government.

10,000 Electric Candles For Pope's Coronation

VATICAN CITY (CP)—Elaborate preparations began today for the coronation Tuesday of Pope John XXIII in St. Peter's Basilica.

Although papal coronations generally are held on Sundays, it is thought Pope John chose Tuesday because it is the feast of St. Charles Borromeo, about whom he once wrote, and published a five-volume study.

The college of cardinals paid formal homage to Pope John today for the third successive day.

For the coronation red damask will be hung in the vast basilica, as well as 10,000 electric candles.

The ceremony — expected to attract personalities from all over the world — must be worked out to the tiniest detail and timed to the last second.

MASS BEFORE CROWNING

The cardinals, bishops and courtiers will accompany the new Pope in magnificent procession to the high altar above St. Peter's tomb for a solemn mass before the triple pontifical crown is placed on his head.

The late Pope Pius XII asked that his crowning take place on the central balcony of the church so that hundreds of thousands of people in the huge square below could witness the ceremony. It is not yet known whether the new Pope will follow this precedent.

Before the actual crowning, the Pope is reminded that, despite the splendor and power belonging to the papacy, he is himself only a mortal being.

While the procession moves up St. Peter's, flax is set alight in a small brazier. As it turns to ashes, the master of ceremonies repeats several times: "Sic transit gloria mundi" thus passes the glory of the world.

As the coronation ends, all the church bells of Rome will peal triumphantly for an hour.

'Amalgamated' Police Force Works

VANCOUVER (CP)—Metropolitan policing is working out very well in Toronto, one of the city's district police chiefs said here Wednesday.

George Elliott, here under an exchange arrangement, said "We are very happy with the system." He continued: "It provides much more efficient administration than before and is more economical."

Chief Elliott said before the metro system was started two years ago, policemen in district forces had no formal training. Now they are all trained at a police academy for which a new $100,000 building has been purchased.

Pulitzer Winner Zoe Akins Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Zoe Akins, a playwright and poet who won the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1935, died Wednesday night after a three-week illness.

She was 72. Among Miss Akins' successful plays were "The Greeks—Had a Word for It," "The Furies" and "Mrs. January and Mr. Ex."

The metro force has 2,200 policemen and 500 civilians "and we could still use about 200 more policemen."

Centennial Year 'Above Our Hopes'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia centennial, biggest do-it-yourself project in Canadian history, "has exceeded our highest expectations," says Lawrie Wallace, of Victoria, general chairman of the British Columbia Centennial committee.

He was referring to projects completed or near completion in 347 communities which staged Centennial events with the help of provincial grants. He told a service club meeting Tuesday that 98 per cent of the communities made "extremely good jobs" of their projects.

Mr. Wallace said there had been some criticisms, some of them justified, but on the whole the year had been a success and made British Columbia better known to the rest of Canada and to the world.

"And it also has been a wonderful opportunity for our people to become aware of their history," he said.

Quoting Times editor Bruce Hutchison, it gave "the increased awareness of a fair land and the people who made it fair."

Steel Replacing Wood for Small Boat Hulls

Steel as a construction material for small craft hulls is enjoying a slow but steady growth. Builders of steel pleasure boats have added to their number of standard models until now they are available in lengths from 25 to 85 feet.

A major advance was made in steel small boat construction with the introduction of low-alloy, high strength steel. Its chief advantage is that it is stronger than ordinary steel, thus allowing substantial reductions in weight without loss of strength. The low-alloy steel also has greater resistance to abrasion and is four to six times more resistant to atmospheric corrosion than ordinary steel. Low-alloy steel together with new construction methods and improved welding techniques have enabled builders to overcome the objectionable features of earlier steel pleasure boats.

Single-Unit Frame

Good steel boats employ "single-unit" construction. Keel, bulkheads and structural members are first welded together into one rugged frame. Then sheet steel is welded on the frame. The welded joints are actually stronger than the sections they join.

The result is a hull that is literally a single unit that has no seams, can't leak, never needs to be caulked. It has the strength and rigidity to endure the most severe storms, and its durability assures a boat that, with reasonable care should be in excellent condition 50 years from now.

No Caulking

Steel boats are practically indestructible. They shrug off collisions that would demolish wood. There is no fear of dry rot or similar forms of deterioration. Since there are no seams, they can't leak and no caulking is required. Marine borers will not attack a steel hull and marine growth will not damage it. There are no joints to weaken or work loose in heavy seas, and no seams to open. Steel won't scuff, sliver or gouge, and retains its smoothness through everyday bumps and scrapes. The steel hull can't soak up water and therefore stays as light as the day you bought it. Steel can be sandblasted, sanded with a disc or belt sander, or scraped with no danger of marring the surface.

Many years ago yachtsmen hesitated buying steel boats because of the corrosion problem. In those days, there were no paints that protected steel easily, economically, and for long periods.

Rapid-Dry Paints

Modern paint systems have done away with this objection and steel has become one of the easiest of materials to maintain. Most of these new paint systems are based on vinyl resins and are radically different from the oil paints habitually used on wood. Some vinyl paints set within one hour and form a tough, flexible film. You can put your boat in the water, if you wish, immediately after painting. Because of rapid drying, coats can be applied one on top of another almost immediately.

A protective device used extensively on large vessels, including our newest submarines, is now available for pleasure craft as well. It not only counteracts the tendency of steel to rust, but prevents electrolytic corrosion as well.

There are now half-a-dozen or more builders of steel pleasure craft and the number is increasing.

HERE'S WHAT NOT TO DO

What is the difference between good and bad customer relations?

Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood explained it this way to an Auto Courts and Resort Owners' convention in Vancouver Wednesday:

"I was given a 50-cent American coin in change after paying for a glass of wine. Later I bought a package of cigarettes from a waiter and paid with the American coin."

"He charged me exchange on the 50-cent piece." That, said the minister, is bad customer relations.

Suspended Term for Douk Who Set Fire to Own Car

A Doukhobor living in Victoria set fire to his motor car as a penance at the suggestion of his "spiritual advisers," Victoria County Court was told Wednesday afternoon.

Nick Konkin, a Doukhobor carpenter of 2417 Cedar Hill Road, was charged with "endangering the safety of the public by setting fire to an automobile containing highly inflammable and explosive liquids, to wit, gasoline and oil."

The offence took place at Island View Beach on May 14 last. Konkin told the court he set fire to his car as a penance for having "caused harm to other people." He did not explain the harm, but said the penance conformed to the practices of the Doukhobor faith.

Judge J. B. Clearhue imposed suspended sentence of one year's imprisonment, to be imposed if Konkin commits another public offence, and a recognisance of $500.

Mayor Percy Scurrell believes that in some instances policemen and commissioners are duplicating "services."

He said Wednesday, as chairman of the police commission: "A policeman was never hired only to ticket cars. We have work for the police apart from this job."

When both police and commissioners checked cars, he termed it "a waste of effort."

Last Chance Friday to stock up on all your Halloween Needs from the BAY'S BIG Selection

Elizabeth Forbes

Women's Editor

The easy way to produce a pie for Halloween is to make it ahead and freeze it ready for eating. Try this simple method and you'll find the compliments flying.

Frozen Pumpkin Pie the Answer To the Busy Homemaker's Prayer

Many women have discovered, they have more time to spend with their families if they use recipes which can be prepared in advance. One such recipe is for frozen pumpkin pie, a delectable dessert which is spread in a corn flakes date crumb crust and can be kept frozen until 10 minutes before serving. It is truly the answer to a homemaker's prayer.

FROZEN PUMPKIN PIE

Three-quarters cup pitted dates, ¼ cup water, ¼ cup butter or margarine, 3 cups corn flakes, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ cup chopped nutmeats.

One cup cooked pumpkin, ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened.

Combine dates and water; cook over low heat, stirring to form a soft paste. Add butter and stir until combined. Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs. Add to date paste together with sugar and nutmeats; mix well. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of 9-inch pie pan. Chill.

Combine pumpkin, brown sugar, salt, spices and ice cream; blend well. Spread in chilled corn flakes date crumb crust. Freeze until firm. Remove from freezer and let stand about 10 minutes before cutting. Garnish with whipped cream, chopped nutmeats or chopped candied orange peel or ginger, if desired. Yield: 1 9-inch pie.

MAY DESTROY SKIN

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Skin irritations on women's hands have increased tremendously since detergents have been manufactured as substitutes for common soap, a Mayo Foundation dermatologist said Tuesday. Dr. Louis A. Brunsting, Sr., said detergents may destroy layers of skin.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Be Sure—Not Sorry!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow aged 44 and am about to marry a man 48 years old. I have a married daughter and a son in service and I don't want to start another family. This man says I have nothing to worry about as he had a bad case of the mumps when he was 36. Tell me, do I have anything to worry about?

GLADYS. DEAR GLADYS: Don't count on it. Ask your fiancé to see a doctor. He will be able to answer your question after a simple laboratory test.

DEAR ABBY: A very nice boy from school asked to take me to a show on Friday night. My folks said all right if I was home by midnight. We were going to double-date with another couple. The two boys picked me up first and when we went to get the other girl, she was not home. The three of us spent the whole evening driving around trying to get a date for the boy who got stood up. When I got home and told my parents we didn't go to a show they got mad and said, "No more dates" Do you think this was fair to me?

JUDY. DEAR JUDY: No! Your parents should give you another chance because when you left the house you didn't know you were going to spend the evening any way other than you had planned. However next time, tell your date that you had permission only to go to a show and a last minute change of plans is out.

DEAR ABBY: Get this. My husband laughed when I said I was going to write to you. In our three and a half years of a happy marriage we were blessed with three lovely babies. But three in 27 months! I am not asking for a medal or sympathy but, believe me, it's been awfully hard on me. My husband complains because the place is messy and there are diapers drying all over, (we live in a trailer) and he gives me the dickens because I don't cook his favorite dishes. How can I do anything but take care of these babies? I have no body to help me. The worst part of it is I think I'm pregnant again.

WORN OUT. DEAR WORN: If it is not contrary to your religious principles, you should get some advice from your doctor on planned parenthood. You do yourself, your husband and the little ones no favors by multiplying at this rate under these conditions.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If you want a collection of Abby's best letters and answers in one book, ask your book-dealer to get "DEAR ABBY" for you.

these success foods is Ovaltine, which contains many of the more important vitamins and minerals. Taken in one of the simplest forms of all—mixed with milk—Ovaltine can make a great difference to your children during their "growing-up" years. Table "tools" came into being for a purpose — eating convenience, but I'll admit that they also evolved standards of "tool" handling in order to establish a more unified system of table etiquette. If one uses the continental style where the fork never shifts from the left hand to the right and where the prongs always curve down to the plate, the potato and tomato slices are cut with the knife and fork and eaten with the fork in that position. The other standard system is more prevalent and equally as correct where the fork does shift to the right hand after cutting. One uses common sense as to when the knife is needed. If the potato is large and quite firm (or slightly undercooked), it would be simpler to cut it with the knife, using the fork as a spear. But if it is small or medium size and fairly soft, a knife wouldn't be necessary. Therefore the tomato slice can be cut with the fork, especially if the skin had been previously removed.

Institute Funds Assist Children Back to Health

Report on the Otho Scott Fund, given by secretary-treasurer Mrs. R. Doe, at meeting of the provincial board of women's institutes in Victoria recently, showed that this fund had been drawn upon several times during the year. The money is used to assist children, whether of institute members or not, to get proper medical or surgical attention when needed.

It was decided that Mrs. Doe will represent the board at an Indian conference in Vancouver on Nov. 13; Mrs. E. G. Woodward, Brentwood Bay, a director on the board, will attend sessions of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, Nov. 25 and 26, and Mrs. R. Partington and Miss Echo Lidster, adult education sessions in Vancouver, Nov. 20.

FOR POOR EYESIGHT

A report was also presented on the Mary E. Davidson Fund, which was a bequest from the late W. K. Esling to aid children of the East and West Kootenays who have defective eyesight. The fund is administered by the institute board of the area.

Mrs. J. O. Decker, Pemberton, B.C., presided.

Speakers included deputy minister of agriculture William

Honor Mrs. Gummow

In a special ceremony Wednesday afternoon at the Legislative Buildings, Mrs. Stella Gummow, who retires this weekend as superintendent of Women's Institutes for British Columbia, was presented with a matching set of luggage. Hon. Newton P. Steacy, minister of agriculture, made the presentation. There were 40 staff members present. Mrs. Gummow is to be married shortly to Mr. Herbert J. Welch of Qualicum Beach.

Home From Africa

Miss Patti Jones returned to Victoria at the weekend after spending the past year in Africa, with another Victoria girl, Miss Gail Champion. Returning home by ship, Miss Jones visited ports in Africa, and also spent some time in England. She is staying in Victoria with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Jones, Cadboro Bay Road.

Planning Party

Mrs. R. R. Wilde entertained at a planning party recently, at her Beach Drive home, for committee members arranging the annual Festival of Christmas Decorations in the Empress Hotel the first week in December. Guests included Mrs. Conway Parrott, Mrs. J. deBourcier, Mrs. J. R. Dillabough, Mrs. Garth Griffiths, Mrs. L. W. Beddington, Mrs. Ian Douglas, Miss Lola Maxwell, Mrs. Herbert Brown and Mrs. George Robson.

Artist at Opening

Couple Home From Abroad

By JUDY NICHOLSON

They gave themselves a trip home to England as a golden wedding present. And for Victoria couple, Mr. and Mrs. Reg Stofer, it was a seven-week holiday that saw dreams come true.

"We'd planned it for years," says Mrs. Stofer. "When Reg retired in the summer, it seems as if it was time to do it."

The Stofers flew, by the CPA Polar Route, direct to Amsterdam and from there on to London. "We were treated like royalty," they say of the flight.

On arrival in the British Isles, they discovered that Mr. Stofer's young niece, Miss Sheila Stofer of Gidea Park, Middlesex, was to be married the following Saturday and that there would be quite a gathering of relatives for the occasion.

VISIT HOME

As very few of the relatives knew the Stofers were in England, it seemed a wonderful opportunity for the "big surprise."

"We bided our time," says Mr. Stofer. "We spent the week visiting in our old home town and discovering familiar landmarks. It was like a second honeymoon."

On the day of the wedding the Stofers went to Gidea and as the wedding party left the church, they were waiting in the churchyard.

"It was a surprise for all," laughs Mr. Stofer. "We hadn't been together for 46 years and yet, in many instances, we recognized each other."

The couple spent the next five weeks "just visiting." They stayed with Mrs. Stofer's sister, Mrs. J. Hitchen, at Binner, Middlesex, and Mr. Stofer's sister, Mrs. E. Lister, of Enfield, Middlesex, also with friends.

Following Rehearsal

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Thompson, of Vancouver, will entertain Friday evening at a dinner party in the Princess Mary Restaurant following the wedding rehearsal of Miss Marilyn Roe and their son, Mr. A. Kenneth Thompson, in Centennial United Church. Among those invited are Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Roe, the bride-elect's parents; her aunt, Mrs. L. S. Simmonds, from Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Galt Wilson, Miss Audrey Kelly, Mr. Alec Morrow and Mr. Melvin Cruickshank.

Back in Victoria after a month and a half in their native England are Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Stofer. "It was a trip we'll not forget," say the couple.

They visited the church in which they were married—St. Matthew's Anglican Church in London—and they walked on the "old familiar streets."

"Everything seemed so much smaller," says Mr. Stofer.

"The streets, my old school, the playground and even the district, all seemed to have shrunk. I guess when a person is young, everything is big, but when you grow older, those same things reduce in size and perhaps in importance."

On the other hand, Mrs. Stofer's outstanding impression is of growth. The places she had known as towns, through modern developments and erection of council houses, had almost attained the proportions of cities, she says.

Now back at their home, 248 Douglas Street, the Stofers are looking ahead to seeing many of their relatives visit Victoria.

"The reunion, after all these years, has brought us very close together," Reg Stofer explains, "and now that it is so easy to fly from one place to the other, I know they'll be coming out before too long. In fact, some of them were making plans before we left."

Pledges Welcomed in Jewel Ritual

The flickering light from candles touched the serious faces of 26 young Victoria women who repeated pledges in the Ritual of Jewel ceremony, Thursday evening, in which they were accepted into local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

The gathering was held in the attractive ladies' lounge in Victoria Golf Club. Mrs. Pat Campbell, vice-president of Xi Chapter conducted the ceremony, assisted by Mrs. Sandra Innes, Mrs. Velma Larson, Mrs. Jeanette Sparks, Mrs. Doreen Cochrane, Mrs. Dorothy Prentis and Mrs. Molly Langley. Ritual was arranged by vice-president of City Council, Miss Audrey McCormick.

Names of pledges and their chapters are: Shirley Merkley, Gay Lobbick, Willa Coles, Norcen Hutchinson and Marilyn Farmer, Xi Chapter; Yvonne Corbin, Helen Court, Irma McCulloch, June McCarter and Margaret Murdoch, Omicron Chapter; Muriel Gagnon, Ethel Palmer, Stella Yates, Helen Netter-field, Diane Hele, Elizabeth Kettlewell, Joan Hayward, Kay Bruner, Norma Cameron, Joan Wallace and Beth Gidman, Alpha Zeta Chapter; Margaret Owens and Jean Fielden, Zeta Chapter; Jean Donaldson, Xi Chapter; Evelyn Downard and Margaret Neilson, Xi Nu Chapter.

Following the ceremony members of the sorority enjoyed a banquet in the club dining room. Mrs. Gwen Carrier, City Council president, was chairman and seated with her at the head table were Mrs. Joy Hillsden, Mrs. Jean Thomson, Mrs. Em O'Callahan, Miss Louise Michaux, Mrs. Velma Larson and Miss Darlane Woodburn, presidents of Zeta, Xi Nu, Alpha Zeta, Xi Beta, Omicron and Xi Xi Chapters; Mrs. Pat Campbell, vice-president of Xi Chapter; Mrs. Stella Gummow, guest speaker; Mrs. Grace Kingham, City Council sponsor; Mrs. Maude Gordon and Miss Elizabeth Forbes, City Council honorary members. Welcome to the new pledges was given by Mrs. Sparks and the pledge introduction by Mrs. Carrier.

Mrs. Gummow told the gathering something of the Canadian women who had started women's institutes in Canada and the British Isles and the Associated Countrywomen of the World. She concluded with an interesting and humorous account of her trip by air to the ACCW conference in Ceylon last year.

Mrs. Carrier introduced the speaker and she was thanked by Mrs. O'Callahan.

ASK ANDY

Why Does Venice Have Canals for Streets?

The Adriatic Sea is an arm of the Mediterranean, reaching up between Italy and Yugoslavia. Its northern shore is a plain, sloping up to the towering Alps. From earliest times swift rivers gushed down these slopes from the mountain glaciers to the Adriatic. They brought with them quantities of rocks and silt. This muddy debris was dumped by the rivers off the northern shores of the Adriatic. The region was a series of tide-swept muddy islands.

Fishing was good and a few people made their homes on these islands. The rise of mighty Rome went unnoticed in these backwaters. Then in the middle of the fifth century occurred an event which was to change the history of all Europe and reach even these muddy islands in the northern Adriatic.

Attila and his armies of barbarian Huns erupted over the face of Europe.

The forgotten islands of the Adriatic were remembered. Soon they were filled with refugees, people who had fled their farms and cities on the mainland. By the middle of the sixth century permanent settlements were established on 12 of the islands and the city of Venice was formed.

City traffic then, as now, travelled by boat. Instead of streets there is a network of 170 canals. There are narrow walks beside the canals and alleyways between the buildings. There are about 378 bridges by which you can cross the canals. But there are no streets on which to drive a car.

Amor de Cosmos was one of the men who for 35 years after 1858 had a large share in determining the course of British Columbia's history. Born plain William Alexander Smith, he came from Nova Scotia and being somewhat of an eccentric had his name legally changed to Amor de Cosmos, which he said meant "Lover of the Universe." In 1858 he established a newspaper, The British Colonist, in Victoria and used the paper to present his views to the public. As a member of the Legislative Council for Victoria, he was one of the people responsible for having the capital of the larger colony moved permanently from New Westminster to Victoria in 1868.

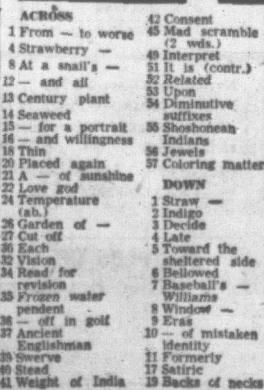

The union of Vancouver Island and the mainland colonies was intended in part to help both colonies out of financial difficulties, but it really satisfied no one. De Cosmos advocated the inclusion of the new colony in the scheme for federation rapidly being concluded in eastern Canada. On May 18, 1867, a motion by Amor de Cosmos that the governor take steps to have British Columbia included in the new Dominion was passed. One of the terms was a suggested wagon road to Canada, but when B.C. delegates met with the federal cabinet this was changed to the promise that a railway would be built instead.

Thus on July 21, 1871, as a result of the effort of de Cosmos and others, B.C. ceased to be a Crown colony and became a province of the Dominion of Canada.

To Tour In Russia
STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Eng. (Reuters) — The Shakespeare Memorial Theatre has accepted an invitation to visit Russia this winter. The 70-member company will take three productions to Russia: Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, and Twelfth Night. They will give 11 performances in Leningrad and 15 in Moscow.

Police 'Found' More Than Lost

For a moment, city police department's efficiency rating appeared to be 110 per cent Wednesday.

September report to police commission noted value of lost property recovered was $144.22 higher than the $1,560.84 worth of property that had been reported lost during the month.

Police Chief John Blackstock said the extra was a carry-over from the previous month's losses that had been recovered in September.

Value of property stolen in September totalled $4,567.46 and $3,955.90 was recovered. Twenty cars were stolen, 19 recovered.

Police Injury Sparks Battle

An irate city police commission struck back at the Workmen's Compensation Board Wednesday for refusing to believe a policeman's injury claim.

The board wrote it would not honor the claim for compensation submitted by const. Albert Wells who lost 35 days of work after suffering a severe thumb injury in a struggle with an intoxicated man Aug. 15. The injury required an operation.

The commission decided to re-submit the claim.

"We shouldn't stand for it," said Commissioner W. J. Hamilton. "Let us demand—not ask—for full and immediate payment of this claim."

"This is a clearcut case, so let's make them give us a good reason why they won't pay."

The police union told the commission "it is most frivolous of (the board) to suggest that there was no accident at all."

"It is a hardship always to be fighting the Workmen's Compensation Board on 100 per cent legitimate claims."

'BUSINESS AS USUAL'

UNDER NEW SHOP HOURS

Wednesday afternoon was "business as usual" at downtown stores that took advantage of the new wide-open shopping bylaw to stay open again.

"There was lots of traffic in town, both at the stores and on the street. As soon as people realize they can shop on a Wednesday afternoon, as they already apparently have, they'll shop," one store official said.

Success of Chest Drive at Stake

Community Chest officials plan for making donations to the civil servants today and will be returned and counted Nov. 10.

If the vote is "yes," the current Chest drive for $300,000 could expect to benefit. Ballots will be distributed to from government employees' payroll contributions.

The ballots going out Thursday will also ask employees if they will accept the following six persons to act as trustees: Joyce McCuaig, civil service commission; Patrick Salmond, department of lands and forests; Lloyd Detwiller, B.C. Hospital Insurance Service; Gordon Spring, motor vehicles branch; Frank Steggle, bureau of economics and statistics; and Fred White, purchasing commission.

Principle of payroll deduction for charity was earlier endorsed by the Victoria branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association. Liquor Control Board employees are included in the vote.

CONFIDENT

Meanwhile, Chest campaign manager Justin Harbord said he was "quite confident" the full $300,000 aimed for would be received before the Nov. 15 amended deadline.

"We shall get $270,000 without a re-canvass," he said, "and we don't anticipate any trouble collecting the other $30,000 together. We are well ahead of the progress of last year's drive at this time."

(Nov. 1 last year $192,000 had been donated.)

Any Chest re-canvassing will be made from commercial and industrial firms, not from householders.

Chest total this morning stood at $211,099.02, and officials asked again that canvassers holding on to contributed money "make sure it is deposited before Friday."

"WHEE! WE DID IT!" rejoice Wren Pat Miller and RCMP Corporal L. B. Excell. With Canada Savings Bond drive open less than a week, Royal Canadian Navy and RCMP have already exceeded last year's totals. Navy has received 3,900 CSB applications totalling $900,000 which exceeds last year's final record total of $870,400. RCMP have hit $174,500 total against 1957 figure of $144,100. ISLAND HUNTERS BAG 40 ELK NANAIMO (CP) — The recently closed elk season netted Vancouver Island hunters 40 fine bulls, biologist Don Robinson reported Wednesday.

He said about 15 of these were shot in the Nanaimo Lakes area, the remainder in the Shaw Creek, Nitinat and Cowichan Lakes districts.

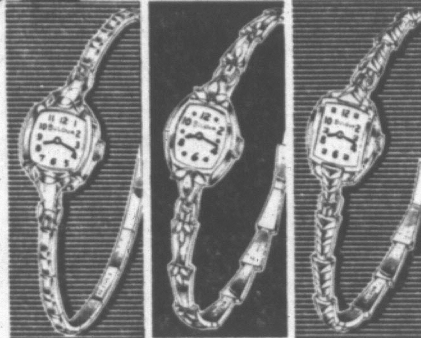

Mr. Robinson said since most bulls taken were fully mature animals, it appeared elk were not being over-shot.

'59 Cars Larger, Better Designed

Must have been the new-car fever that kept me indoors for a week, and which defied the usually effective aspirins. Many of the 1959 cars are out, and it seems we are going to have some of the best-looking cars in years.

Detroit is at last beginning to depend less on artificial exterior decoration than on inherently good lines. This impression of mine found confirmation in some ultra-critical overseas publications, who are not wont to mince words on the subject of American cars, who, however, went so far as to concede that the appearance of some 1959 American cars would do credit to the top-flight Italian styling houses, whence emanate the world's most elegant, and costly, coachwork.

Many of the new cars are again larger over-all, but this time with the compensating grace of proportionately increased interior space, both as to passenger and luggage accommodation. All G.M. body shells, for example, offer front and back hip-room of no less than 66 inches, and trunks of 32 cu. ft. capacity. They are, in fact, 8-seaters now, as comfortably as three could sit abreast front and back only a short while ago, yet within an over-all width no greater than yesterday's 6-seaters.

Fords have now inherited, in an up-to-date interpretation, the conspicuously elegant neo-classic lines of their more expensive stable-mates, the Lincoln and Mercury—the long flat roof and squared-off rear window. It is a styling theme which has its roots in the "razor-edge" design of British custom body builders, than which nothing finer exists. The Chrysler line, including the Plymouth, have further refined their suspension and thus riding and handling qualities, in which department they were unexcelled, perhaps supreme. Simplified servicing of the front wheel geometry was one happy result of the minor yet not unimportant changes, made to their marvellous torsion bar suspension.

Generally, successful attention has been paid to making the new cars inherently safer to use. Brakes are not only larger in area in most makes, but the drums so designed that heat dissipates more quickly—heat being the greatest enemy to brake-stability under arduous use. Wheel-track has been increased, the centre of gravity lowered, frames further stiffened and reinforced.

ENGINES DETONED

Under the hood, the felicitous trend of de-tuned engines, courageously started last year by Oldsmobile, has gained momentum. The horse-power race has come full cycle, having been started by Oldsmobile with their first "Rocket" engine in 1949. Instead, we see the beginnings of the far more valuable and important economy-race, and, in a sense, the "torque"-race. But you will be quite wrong in fearing that the new cars perform less powerfully—on the contrary.

American Motors, with their spectacularly successful Rambler series, have not rested on their laurels, but have made their economy champions more economical still, all the while having further improved the excellent performance.

Studebaker will have their most interesting year, it is safe to predict, for history is about to repeat itself. In the 30s, the company was in deep financial trouble, and about to collapse, when, as a last-ditch stand, the now famous Champion was made in 1939.

Now, we are about to see the real successor to the original Champion, the Studebaker Lark, which is bound to be a sensational success. Nothing quite like it is made by anyone else, especially at the price. It will have seats five feet wide front and back—it will be a comfortable six-seater—nearly 30 inches shorter than last year's Scotsman, with four inches more leg-room and an equally large trunk. It will easily have the best interior-space, over-all size ratio on the market; it will have the ultra-refined version of the original and famous Champion six-cylinder engine, which was the American economy champion even when pulling larger and heavier cars than the Lark, and pulling them briskly, silently and indefinitely. The Studebaker Lark was the surprise of the Paris show earlier this month, where it was publicly shown long before its official North American introduction.

That first meeting came and went and had all the significance of two strangers meeting in a bus queue.
But from that moment Townsend was to be thrown into Margaret's company.
No family in the world is subject to so merciless, so unrelenting a stare of public scrutiny as the British Royal Family. And no member has had to suffer from this ordeal by publicity more than the Princess Margaret.

Most of what is written is awry, some of it scandalous. Princess Margaret is a royal person and one who is perfectly conscious of what that state entails. That she is an attractive girl, gay, warm-hearted, and alert, is incidental to the central purpose of her life.

Formal, Lonely Life

It is a formal life and a lonely one, hemmed in by Victorian conventions and disciplines that have almost vanished from English life elsewhere. Nevertheless, since she was in her teens, her circle of close friends has been rather more widely drawn than is usually customary in the Royal Family.

It is only with them and her own relatives that she can feel quite relaxed and at ease in company. Elsewhere there is always the danger that remarks, no matter how lightly made, may be repeated and achieve false importance.

Princess Margaret's friends are an amiable and intelligent collection of young people; they are conventional in the sense of believing in moderation. But they are lively-minded and regard conversational dullness almost as a form of bad manners.

Although the Princess is not a Bohemian, she has outstanding musical and theatrical talents. Hence she became a fan and friend of Danny Kaye, not minding when he called her "honey" instead of "ma'am." She is not an intellectual but is intellectually above the other members of the Royal Family. She is better educated and much quicker-witted than most people.

member of her family or by her most intimate friends. Only in Peter Townsend did she find complete harmony of mind.

After her sister was safely settled in motherhood, Margaret became the most eligible party-goer in London. Newspapers wrote about every party the Princess went to, reporting her every dance, her every glance, her every girlish gesture.

Shopgirls and Mayfair matrons read these stories and—just for a moment—sustained England under a Socialist government seemed to be Merrie England once again.

Partner Startled

"Look into my eyes," Princess Margaret ordered a startled dancer partner. "I am looking into them, Ma'am," he stammered. "Well," said the princess, "you're looking into the most beautiful eyes in England."

"The Duchess of Kent has the most beautiful nose. The Duchess of Windsor has the most beautiful chin. My mother, the Queen, the most beautiful complexion. And I have the most beautiful eyes. Surely," she added with an impish gleam in her eye, as her flustered partner groined for a suitable answer, "you believe what you read in the newspapers."

The Princess believed none of it. As a younger girl she may often have longed to call less cynical attention to her large, soft blue eyes and to kick up her heels in a freer fashion. As a princess she could only mock, strictly among her friends, and make the best of it.

Princess Margaret was born on the night of August 21, 1930, at her grandparents' home, Glamis Castle, and weighed nine pounds. She was then fourth in line of succession—preceded by the Prince of Wales; her father, the Duke of York, and her sister Elizabeth. The baby was christened Princess Margaret Rose of York, and for years was known as Margaret Rose. But the Princess disliked the name Rose and insisted on its being dropped.

Barrie Fascinated

On her third birthday, celebrated at Glamis Castle, Sir James Barrie came over to tea. Margaret was fascinated by a little toy table with two painted flower pots on it, the whole thing about the size of a thimble. The author of Peter Pan asked her: "Is that really yours?" To which came the immediate reply: "It is mine and yours."

So intrigued was Barrie by this answer that he incorporated it in the text of his play, "The Boy David." And he acknowledged the source by promising the Princess a penny royalty for every time that particular line was spoken on the stage.

Four years later as he lay dying, he sent his secretary, Lady Cynthia Asquith, with a bag of pennies to the Princess' London home. In return the famous dramatist received a receipt solemnly signed by Margaret and witnessed by her mother.

Margaret's father adored this child. The King once said that his younger daughter could "persuade the pearl to come out of any oyster." As she grew up he could refuse her nothing.

If she was much loved by her father, so was she by her grandfather, King George V. After the King died she remarked: "Grandpa is in Heaven now. God must find him very useful."

"Are they going to cut off his head?" That's what Margaret asked her sister Elizabeth when she heard the news of King Edward's abdication. Read about it in Chapter 5 of the Peter Townsend Story.

Mixed Reception Given New Ballet

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Ballet of Canada Wednesday night unveiled an original Canadian work with a western setting before a distinguished audience in the Capitol Theatre here.

Opening a two-night stand, the company presented the world premier of "Ballad" with choreography by Grant Strate, a member of the Toronto-based company since its founding in 1951.

"Ballad" has a prairie setting and concerns life in a small town at the beginning of the century.

The story it tells through the dancing concerns the conflict of the older generation, with their maturing children who have known only the small town.

HER SKILL WINS AGAIN

To Paris for Free on Rhyming Spree

In the bright Pacific sun
Bathing, surfing, all the fun
Crystal caves and silver sea —
Acapulco, you're for me.

This gay limerick, written by Mrs. Lillane Le Butt of 214 Wildwood Avenue, Victoria, won her a free vacation in Acapulco, Mexico, last August and a free flight both ways over Canadian Pacific Airlines.

Now, with another limerick, Mrs. Le Butt has won a return ticket to Paris and an all-expenses-paid vacation.

This one tells of the joys of wearing a lady's sweater set—a contest promoted by the Pride O'Glen Knitting Mills (Canada) Ltd., Odeon Theatres and CPA.

Working at her typewriter in the Legislative Buildings today, jolly brown-eyed Mrs. Le Butt is trying to figure out why a 40-hour week in the B.C. civil service earns so much less than a six-line limerick on sweaters.

"These little jingles come easily," she said, "and I dash them down on the typewriter as fast as they come. I enjoy writing limericks, and since the advertisers seem to like them so much, I hope to try my hand at the advertising business."

Mrs. Le Butt submitted four limericks in the Matchbox sweater set contest. Here is one of them:

Warm and snug and full of style,
My foes will glare, my friends will smile,
Will smile and say, "You look just fine,
That tailored look, that slimming line."
For work, for play, for evenings bright,
A Matchbox Set is always right.

Mrs. Le Butt discovered her joys of a vacation in Acapulco—a place she had never even heard of.

"No one was more astonished than I when Canadian Pacific Airlines told me I had won the prize. I took a friend with me to Mexico for two people to the foyers offering a two-way trip to Mexico for two people to the winner of a limerick extolling and we had a wonderful time."

It's rich and savoury! It's

MARMITE

Your soups and stews smell twice as tempting, taste twice as delicious with Marmite. Good in gravies too, and the children love tasty Marmite added to sandwiches. It's a good dietary source of the Vitamin B complex, too. So buy Marmite: try it today.

Agents: Geo. L. Edmondson & Associates, 318 Homer St., Vancouver, B.C.

The Paris trip will give Mrs. Le Butt a wonderful opportunity to visit her native England, which she left only 15 months ago. After the free holiday is over, Mrs. Le Butt will travel to Bognor Regis, England, which she left in July, 1957, as an emigrant to B.C. This writer of limericks had a varied career before coming to Victoria. She worked on scripts and continuity in the British film studios at Elstree, Pinewood and Shepperton, enduring the temperamental uncertainties of producers, directors and actors. She worked as secretary in various kinds of business offices, and in recent years operated a pet shop at Bognor Regis.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1958

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—This is the day you can with relative ease express yourself in the right terms with all with whom you have contact or business. And it is most important for your future success that you do so. Be certain to study, telephone, visit, etc.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—The practical approach is the best today in dealing with associates and you will get far better results than you had anticipated. Also, take care of your credit and be sure to pay most important bills. Get budget more streamlined.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Here is the day to approach the right persons with your creative ideas and get their co-operation and financial support. Be detailed and specific in stating what you want and they will gladly go along with you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—Have conferences with personal advisors and experts today with regard to private worry that must be gotten rid of immediately. Then it will be possible to assist those who look to you for direly needed help.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—The only way to achieve real harmony in home life is to really understand the wants and needs of family ties. Then discuss these things with some expert in family relations and set in motion what will surely bring great happiness to loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You are a bit confused how to utilize the learning you have acquired in present relationship. Consult influential persons who can give right advice that you can follow far into the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Actually, you are not exactly sure of your financial position, and if you do not increase assets now, you will not be able to take the time to find out. Hire an expert and go after big dividends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Since you are somewhat uncertain just how to go after what you most desire, it is best you get into the so-called silence for a short period each day and let exact hunches come through. But be certain later to act upon them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You are troubled and anxious and want the solution to problems. Best bet is to discuss matters with associate. He or she is the type who can keep secrets, and so you are helped confidentially and wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Your goals and desires are fixed and true, but it is imperative you work diligently today instead of going off on some spree, or in different direction. Everyone has moments of indecision, but perseverance wins the race.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Aquarian tendency to fame and fortune can be helped greatly today by thinking in broad and magnanimous terms. Impress others with your adherence to policy and dignity of goals. P.M. invite powerful persons in for dinner.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—You now have a great desire to know and cultivate the acquaintance of interesting and influential people. Get close family ties to co-operate with you and it will be a turning point in all your lives. Begin up trend immediately.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN FRIDAY...
The highly evolved little child born Friday is wonderfully constituted for great expression in all phases of art, things of the spirit, religion, and like gifts from God above. And the need for living beautifully is great, so either give the most precise of education or see to it that sponsors or influential persons soon realize the capabilities of your fine child.

Bids Sought

Tenders will be called on operation of the Mill Bay ferry service, to start Nov. 16 for one year with an option to renew for another year. Highways Minister P. C. Gagliardi announced Wednesday.

Tenders will be opened in his office Nov. 10 at 2 p.m.
Coast Ferries Ltd., operator of the service, announced a month ago it would have to give the service up because of lack of business and a poor tourist year.

The company asked for a $3,000 monthly subsidy to continue, but Mr. Gagliardi offered a $1,000 monthly subsidy for a month as a trial. The company has been operating one vessel on the run for the month instead of the customary two.

FREIGHT RATE FREEZE URGED BY CCFer

GRAND PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP)—Hazen Argue Wednesday night called for a two-year moratorium on freight rate increases, but without any similar freeze on rail wages.

The CCF Commons leader said in a public address here that rate increases are "tragically self-defeating." The railways lost more business with each boost.

A two-year moratorium would provide a "breathing space" for the federal government to reshape a "bits and pieces" transportation policy. "Of course," Mr. Argue said, "a moratorium on freight rates should not be an excuse to deny adequate wages to railway employees."

CEREMONY AT FORT LANGLEY NOV. 18

Schools Asked to Mark Douglas Day

All British Columbia schools have been asked to conduct special ceremonies Nov. 18 commemorating Sir James Douglas and the birth of the province.

The following day, 100th anniversary of a proclamation establishing the mainland colony is a school holiday.

Public ceremonies will be held at Fort Langley, attended by Governor-General Vincent Massey and four provincial lieutenant-governors.

B.C. Centennial chairman L. J. Wallace said today all schools are expected to carry out prepared programs the day prior to the holiday. The ceremonies will be held in conjunction with a special radio-broadcast to all sections of B.C., sponsored by the department of education.

The radio program will feature school bands and choirs and a special address by the Governor-General.

"Each school will likely have a guest speaker who will elaborate on the importance of the Douglas Day anniversary, and the life of the first governor," said Mr. Wallace.

Ceremonies on Douglas Day will be held at Fort Langley, the site of the original ceremonies in 1858.

The old fort has been entirely reconstructed as a national park with assistance of the federal government. One of the buildings, a museum, is a section of the original fort which withstood the elements.

The Governor-General will open the authentically-rebuilt officers' quarters.

Also attending will be Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross of B.C., Lieutenant-Governor

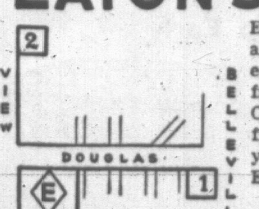

Frank I. Bastedo of Saskatchewan, Lieutenant-Governor Campbell Macpherson of Newfoundland, and Lieutenant-Governor John J. Bowlen of Alberta.

Details of other events to be attended by the visiting vice-regal representatives will be announced later by the provincial secretary's office.

All 10 Canadian lieutenant-governors had been invited to the ceremonies.

'We Prayed...Sang Hymns...Hoped'

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — "God, how I

hollered!"

These words, uttered through dried and cracked lips by Gorley Kempt, told of his first reaction to the sounds that heralded the miraculous rescue, of 12 men from Cumberland No. 2 colliery.

Kempt, lying with his mouth against an air pipe where he and 11 others were trapped for six days and nights behind a wall of rock and debris in terrible darkness, heard a clink of metal hitting metal.

"I couldn't believe it when I heard that cable rattle. I wouldn't let myself believe it. I just lay there listening for nearly an hour, I guess.

"Then I heard a pick or something click on the pipe and I hollered. God, how I hollered."

"When someone hollered back—well, I just can't describe the feeling."

At the other end of the air pipe bare-faced, rescue workers heard the words "We are alive in here—how about some water."

Twelve hours later they had crawled and dug their way through the barrier and brought out the 12.

Telling of the six days in the tomb, Kempt said: "I dug a cubbyhole in the rubble. I thought there might be a way out but there wasn't. And soon I knew there wasn't. So I just lay there day after day. And I prayed—and I'm not a praying man."

Before many of the 150 hours of their entombment had lapsed, what little food and water they had were exhausted.

After a few days of their eternity their miners' lamps died and they themselves prepared for the death they were almost sure would come.

Caleb Rushton, a choir singer in his spare time, sang hymns from time to time.

"I tried to lead them as best I could and sometimes we were all singing together. I guess our favorite was "Stranger of Galilee." We sang that a lot. It seemed to help."

Joe McDonald, with a fractured thigh, didn't stir from a rock pile for the whole time.

"That's all I did. I just lay there and I prayed and thought about the Lord and asked Him to bring me out safely. That and the stuff we drank; that's what kept me alive."

Wilfred Hunter crawled back and forth in the tunnel.

"When the bump came last Thursday, the floor came up and the ceiling came down. I was hurled about 15 feet along with more falling coal and rock and timber and iron than I ever saw. Two steps behind me were my buddy and my boss. I haven't seen them since but we'll get them out now, I guess.

The buddy, Carl Moran, was buried today. The boss was Charlie Burton whose funeral was held on Wednesday.

"We had a couple of lamps operating for a day or so and I crawled around to look," said Hunter. "I saw my twin brother, Frank imbedded in the

REST WELL, LUCKY MINER

Nurses at All Saints Hospital make sure rescued Springhill miner Caleb Rushton rests comfortably

after nearly week sealed in mine ruins. At first given up for dead, 12 lucky miners were brought up alive.

Wengren Power Company Formed

First concrete step toward the development of huge hydro power resources in the proposed "Wenner-Gren Empire" in the Rocky Mountain trench was taken today with the incorporation of a $20,000,000 company.

It is called the Peace River Power Development Company. (See Page 9 for details.)

City Bus Fares Hiked 3 Cents

But fares in Victoria city will go up from 10 to 13 cents cash on Sunday, Nov. 9, the Public Utilities Commission announced today. The city zone extends in a 3½-mile circle from the City Hall.

Children's half fares will remain at 5 cents cash in the city. Books of tickets for city travel will be sold to adults at four for 50 cents (12½ cents each) and to children at five for 25 cents (5 cents each).

Similar increases will be effective in outer Victoria and in Vancouver, North Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster.

In Vancouver city adults will pay 15 cents instead of 13, and children 7 cents instead of 5.

Meeting in Victoria this morning, the PUC decided to grant B.C. Electric's application for higher transit fares in full.

REASONS GIVEN

Reasons given for the decision were: 1. Higher operating costs. 2. The need for B.C. Electric to show "a reasonable return" on its operation in order to borrow fresh capital. 3. Fewer people using the buses because of increased auto traffic.

The fare increase was vigorously protested at recent public hearings given by the PUC in Victoria and Vancouver at which the municipalities were represented by counsel.

The PUC felt that many of these protests were "unrealistic," a spokesman said. Cash fares from Victoria city to the first outer zone extending four miles from the City Hall will increase from 13 cents to 15 cents for adults and from 6 cents to 7 cents for children.

Books of tickets for this zone will increase from 4 for 50 cents to 5 for 75 cents for adults and from 5 for 25 cents to 4 for 25 cents for children.

In the second outer zone, extending five miles from City Hall, adults will pay 17 cents cash and children 9 cents cash. There will be no books of tickets for adults in this zone, but children can buy them at 10 for 80 cents instead of 10 for 70 cents as now.

Men Held for Observation

The men will be held for a 48 or 72-hour observation period and those found fit will be released.

The families of the miners, who were allowed to visit the men shortly after they were admitted, will be allowed a second visit tonight.

News men were given three minutes for fast interviews this morning.

The miners complained mainly of thirst. They shared a two-quart can of water among them, but it lasted only three days.

"My God, give me a drink," McDonald said, as he was carried into the hospital on a stretcher.

$5,000 GIFT BY POPE JOHN

OTTAWA (CP)—A $5,000 gift to the hard-hit mine families of Springhill, N.S., was among the first actions to be taken by the new Pope John XXIII.

The apostolic delegation here announced today that the money has been sent to Most Rev. J. Gerald Berry, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Halifax, to be dispensed.

move bodies and the other to explore the rest of the 13,000-foot tunnel.

The work of the exploratory crew took preference, and no bodies were to be removed if it held up the drive to the far end of the tunnel.

Doctors who examined the 12 latest survivors said that only two, Ted Michniak, 59, and Joseph McDonald, 38, suffered injuries. McDonald has a broken leg and Michniak a badly injured back.

WATER FOR 6 DAYS

Amazing survival in mine was helped by tiny water bottle shared by six men for six days, held by nurse, above, at bedside of Eldred Lowther. Below rescuer Percy Weatherbee tells Billy Lowther wonderful news father is safe. (AP Wirephoto.)

RESCUER'S STORY

FAINT VOICE 'LIKE SHOCK'

Editor's note: Here is Earl Wood's story of how the rescue crew of which he was a member found 12 men alive in the Cumberland mine. Wood, 48, has worked in the mines for years.

By EARL WOOD

As Told To The Canadian Press
SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—I was working away in a shaft leading from the main slope, digging in a solid wall of coal, when all at once the coal became very loose and with a roar a cloud of dust and hot air blew into my face.

This was about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning and we sat there half an hour or so waiting for the dust to settle. We were hopeful because we felt sure we had reached the opening we were hunting for. There was some gas and it was terribly dusty.

I went back again with two of the officials. We had high hopes that there might be a hole big enough for a man to crawl through.

All we saw was a stump of six-inch steel compressed air pipe. It was broken off and we could not hear or see anything.

After we had been sitting and watching for some time we thought we heard someone speak. It was just a piece of a word and very faint but it hit us like an electric shock.

We looked back toward the

THE PETER TOWNSEND STORY

Margaret Found Harmony of Mind

By NORMAN BARRYMAINE
(Copyright By Peter Davies Ltd.)

CHAPTER 4

It was a chill morning in February when Townsend, now 29 years old and as impeccable as hours of work by his batman and tailor could make him, was saluted by the sentry outside the gilded wrought-iron gates of the Palace and then was shown into the King's study by a servant in blue battle dress.

It was a small sunny room decorated in the King's favorite colors—light-green walls and dark-green carpet. The interview lasted about half an hour.

The King must have asked many questions about Peter's life and Peter's family—a family that for generations had served its country.

So while the King was desirous of rewarding gallantry rather than of furthering the advantages of birth, Peter Townsend was really tailor-made in both respects.

Also, from the standpoint of the court, he was married to the right kind of woman. There is no doubt Peter made a good impression. A few days later the appointment was confirmed.

Peter was to become a courtier. In a month he had started work in the palace.

If this story were fiction, it would be a picturesque touch in weaving the threads of a romance to have Peter meet Princess Margaret on the day he went to see the King for the first time. In fact, this is what really happened.

In those days the Princess lived with her elder sister, Elizabeth, at Windsor Castle. They came to London one day each week.

After Peter had left the King's room he was standing in the corridor outside the equestrian room talking to one of the household. Elizabeth and Margaret came along. Peter was introduced.

To the 13-year-old Princess Margaret, Townsend was just one more of that army of service officers who could be seen in the palace at any time during those vital years of war.

And what did Townsend think of her?

The impression she created on everyone at that time was of a leggy, excitable girl with a lot to say and very little time in which to say it. She chattered endlessly in a voice far louder than the usual murmur employed by the Royal Family.

BRIBE TRIAL JUDGE TELLS JURORS:

'Loans Just as Criminal'

(See Page 8)

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson told the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial jury today that loans given for corrupt purposes are just as criminal as gifts for corrupt purposes.

The presiding judge, continuing his summation in the 74th day of the case, made the observation in referring to the defence of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

The main point of that defence was that the former minister got some $7,100 in loans from timber broker H. W. Gray as a friend, with no strings attached—that they were covered by notes and repaid.

At another point the justice said that the crown had properly stressed that "these loans were not made by cheque in the normal way" but by cash, by wire and by bonds. The judge remarked that he must say that this was a strong feature of the crown's case.

The judge recalled evidence that in December, 1955, Attorney-General Robert Bonner had instructed Sommers to get the notes back from Gray because "the situation might be misunderstood."

He recalled, too, Sommers' testimony that he immediately borrowed $5,000 from the bank

Victoria Fund Swells to $500

Greater Victoria donations to the disaster fund for the stricken mining community of Springhill, N.S., rose to almost $500 by noon today.

City clerk's office reported a total of $291.50 had been donated to the Greater Victoria fund. A downtown bank also receiving contributions, which will be turned over to the municipal fund, reported total donations of $204.

Higher bus fares c'd mean lower opinions.

Looks like the new company's all set for a Peaceful development.

'WE PRAYED'

ceiling and just dangling there. He was dead but I couldn't leave him.

"Every day I would crawl over to where he was in the dark and feel that he was still there. I didn't want to lose him."

Hunter said they had only a two-quart can of water among the 12. "We rationed it but it lasted only three days."

While some of the 12 admitted they had abandoned hope, Hunter declared he didn't.

"I guess I turned over every stone and once, I thought I heard somebody tapping. But even after that stopped—about the second day—I didn't give up hope. I figured we'd get out."

McDonald said: "We were Catholics and Protestants down there but we all prayed together aloud that God would save our lives. I'm thinner and pretty weak but my spirit's strong."

After four or five days, he said, he thought he heard noises at the top of the 13,000-foot wall. "But they seemed awfully far out. Since some of the boys had already given up hope, I didn't mention it."

Rushton said others had died around them while they waited.

"There were some it hurt the first night but nothing afterwards. Those who weren't killed instantly by the bump, and most of them were, died shortly after the gas started coming in."

"The gas wasn't too bad and later we got a little circulation of air to clear it. But those who were badly hurt at the start didn't have the energy to fight off the fumes."

"I was wearing a luminous watch and we kept track of the time and days that way. She's a pretty good watch. Nothing stops her. . . I guess she's blessed with the same higher power that saved us."

Rushton said two lunch pails were found after the upheaval smashed the mine. The men nibbled on corners of sandwiches for two days.

"It was while we were nibbling that I started them singing hymns. . . I'm a choir singer and they really liked it when Bowie Maddison and I would do a duet on 'Stranger of Galilee.' They liked that better than any other hymn and we sang it three or four times a day for them."

Maddison said: "I kept feeling over for the man next to me to make sure I wasn't alone. When I would feel he was there, I would know he was still with me and both of us were alive. There must be a God to give us the faith we had in knowing we would be found all right."

Dr. John R. Ryan said the men told him they had tried to dig themselves out but soon tired in the waist-high pocket.

"Barry Leadbetter, Levy Milley and Hugh Guthro were in exceptionally good shape when they finally emerged. A good man can go a month without food provided he has water. But these men were five days without food and six days without water."

"And when they came out Leadbetter said he was strong enough to walk on his own. He would have, too, but I doubt whether he could have gone far."

"They did a great thing," he said.

"We were all so happy to see them, the whole bunch of us just started to cry."

... SPRINGHILL

Dr. J. G. B. Lynch, chief medical officer of Dominion Coal Company, said the survivors were all conscious and were being given blood and plasma.

"Most of them are just lying there smoking cigarettes and enjoying the feeling of being human again."

He said only "the great stamina of these miners" pulled them through.

"I'm all right," Kempt told reporters shortly after he walked unaided into All Saints' Hospital. "I'm just terribly tired and weary."

At the hospital waited the wives and children of the 12 men most never expected to see again.

"God was good to him twice," said Cecilia McDonald as she gently stroked her husband's coal-stained hair. "He escaped twice and that's enough." She said he would not return to the pits.

'WE JUST SAT ...'

Miners Weep at Rescue

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — Hugh Guthro, 31-year-old coal miner, said from a hospital bed today he and his 11 buddies cried when they knew rescuers were coming for them.

Guthro, twice spared death in mine accidents, told his wife to go home and rest rather than stay any longer with them at All Saints Hospital.

The 12 men who returned from a mine where life was counted-out prayed, sang hymns and managed the odd joke during their nightmare.

With less than an hour's sleep during the underground ordeal, Guthro took 40 minutes to talk about his second escape from a battered coal mine. He was trapped three days in neighboring No. 4 colliery in 1956 before rescuers reached him.

When the upheaval occurred Thursday Guthro said the men near him were tossed up against the ceiling. He remained conscious and knew miners were dying along the coal wall. He was buried up to the chest. Others helped him out.

"At first we tried to dig our own way out but soon we got so weak we had to stop. We had no food and no water since Sunday or Monday. The last thing we ate were a few crusts of bread."

"We rationed our lights and cut some batteries off the dead men but on Monday we were in darkness."

Guthro said there was no gas in their tomb and fresh air seeped in. "We just sat during the last three days."

Guthro said the bare-faced miners, who conduct rescue operations without respirators, "did a great thing." Miner Mort Hunter was the first man to appear in the hole the rescuers burrowed through.

"I'm done with coal mining," Guthro said. "You come out of it twice and that's enough. I'm not trying for a third time."

'GREAT RELIEF' — DIEFFENBAKER

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the rescue of 12 miners at Springhill was "a very great relief."

"I can only hope—and pray—it is not too much to hope that in the next few hours news of more survivors may be reaching us," he said.

loader, which was on the way back to the slope, and found about 40 feet away that the pipe was broken off.

We figured that the voice we heard must have been someone in the tunnel and we sat down to wait.

About 2 o'clock the superintendent and the engineer decided to check the air. Blair Phillips, the engineer, took his testing bottle and went to check the air coming from the pipe I had uncovered.

DRAMATIC WORDS

I guess the reflection of the bottle must have sent light into the hole because the next words I heard I will remember all the days of my life:

"We are alive in here—how about some water?"

It was a great thrill and we all laughed and cried and holtered at the same time. I don't really remember what was said for the next few minutes but I can tell you we were whooping it up for a minute or two.

Two of the fellows with me—Arnold Reese and George Hodges—had a brother-in-law, Harold Brine, in there, so we let them do most of the talking.

They told us they were in pretty good shape although 'op McDonald had a broken leg.

They still had time for jokes

and when Scott, a Scotsman with a burr to match, yelled to them, somebody from inside told him to take the marbles out of his mouth and talk English.

There were lots of other jokes but it might be better if I didn't tell them—they were good pit talk.

It was something we never dreamed could happen. I had given up all hope. It was far beyond a miracle.

The Visitors

THE little green men from Mars disguised themselves as normal young Canadians, and set out for a supermarket.

These places, they'd been told, were a predominant feature of the civilization they were studying, and part of their assignment was to bring back a detailed report of what they found there.

Because of his superior intelligence, the leader of the group elected to report upon the women's magazines.

"It takes a genius to understand a woman's mind," he said, with his usual modesty.

But even his genius was flummoxed after the first five minutes. However, being a conscientious type, he read on with great determination.

He read about the "Wonder of Well-Being." He read about how to combat childbirth, insanity, and how to handle alcoholic husbands.

Under the heading of "What's New in Medicine," he read about a host of wonder drugs. (Not that he absorbed what he read. Indeed, when he had finished the article, he couldn't name or spell a single drug correctly. All that remained was a confused impression of horrible diseases and unsuspected dangers.)

He read about all the major killers, and how one American in four would die of this, and one in three would die of that. And, being a nervous type he soon was certain that he suffered from all of these diseases.

"A sickly but courageous people," he murmured, and to comfort himself he read an article about the joy of sexual loving and how very few were normal enough to achieve it.

Somewhat shaken and more than a little puzzled, he progressed to an article about aspirin. This tiny pill, this wonder drug, he read, was devoured by Americans—and presumably Canadians—at the rate of 500 a second, and to the tune of $48,000,000 annually.

"Curiouser and curiouser," he muttered, and picked up another magazine to read its feature article "The Diet that Gives Peace of Mind."

This diet was for hard-pressed executives, he learned. For scientific surveys had proved that peace of mind and peace of stomach were definitely inter-related.

"How can they have peace of mind when they read so much about disease?" he asked himself.

However, turning the page, he found that peace of mind was not a question of diet. It could be achieved by following Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Obediently, he followed Dr. N. V. P. for at least a thousand words, including a sudden jump to page 67.

As a sequel to that, he read an article which stated very firmly that true security and peace of mind would never come to anyone whose childhood had been warped by slightly crooked teeth.

Marital problems, miracle drugs, energizers, tranquilizers, the dangers of premature old age—the conscientious little man from Mars read them all.

"How'd ya make out? he companions asked him on the homeward trip.

He shook his little green head. "A peculiar people. Most peculiar."

And then—just a shade hysterically—he began to laugh and laugh.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

How to Gain Weight

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

When I publish a column on reducing weight, a number of people, who describe themselves as distressingly skinny, write asking what they can do to put on some fat.

Obviously, the thing to do is to eat each day plenty of rich food, with a lot of cream and butter hidden in soups, mashed potato, cooked vegetables, and desserts. The persons should take glasses of milk with much cream added, and they should put much cream in their coffee, on cereal, fruit, puddings, apple sauce, pies, and wherever it can be added. At home, the thin person should have a pitcher of cream beside his plate.

His food should contain extra butter. For instance, his eggs can be scrambled with butter. He should use much butter on his bread and on baked potatoes and other foods. When he has a lamb chop or pork chop, or any piece of fat meat, he should eat the fat. Persons who find it very hard to eat much at the table can add many calories to their diet by quickly gulping down twice a day a rich egg-malted milk with ice cream stirred into it.

Perhaps the main difficulty with many thin persons is that they have little appetite, and when they sit down to dinner with some desire to eat they quickly fill up and then they can hardly take another bite.

As many a thin person has said to me, "After a few mouthfuls, I feel as if I had eaten a whole goose." Many thin persons are almost certain to fill up quickly if they go out to dinner, perhaps at a restaurant. They cannot start with a soup or some shrimp, because even the soup is likely to so fill them up that then they cannot touch their entree or their meat.

Many thin persons like to eat very slowly, but often this makes things worse for them. Many would do better to take out their watch and try to get their meal down in a few minutes before they turn against it.

That thin persons can be fattened and made to look immensely better and to have better health was shown me years ago by my old chief. When expense was no object, he would take a thin sick-looking woman and put her in a certain sanatorium which in those days had wonderful food. He would get a cheery nurse to encourage the woman to eat, and to see to it that she did consume the food that was put on her tray.

The woman complained for a few days of feeling stuffed, but usually she soon adjusted to the large amount of food. The nurse had to see to it that each day the woman's bowels moved well. If they did not, there might come nausea and abdominal distension and pain. An enema of warm salty water was the best cure for this.

What interested me much was that the only women who did not gain weight on this regimen were those who had some mental distress. I can still remember the sad-looking heiress who had been married for her money by an adventurer. When he practically deserted her and seldom came home, she became depressed. She never could put on a pound.

I remember, also, a young woman much in love with a man whom her parents despised; also, a beautiful college girl in love with a merry scamp who would never get around to proposing. Neither of these fretting women could gain any weight.

All of which shows that many persons stay thin because they worry the weight off faster than they can put it on. They are too tense, too active, or too self-conscious.

There is another peculiar fact about people, and this suggests that in our brain we have a sort of tiny regulator, like a thermostat, which keeps our weight steady at a certain point on the scale, no matter how much we eat.

To illustrate: when I was young and up to about the age of 40, I ate all I could with the hope of filling out, but never gained a pound. I remained thin. Then my "thermostat" seemed to change its setting so that my weight suddenly went up five pounds, and then remained at the new level. A few years later, the "thermostat's" setting changed suddenly again, and later, again, and since the last change I have had to remain on a reducing diet to keep from getting stout!

CHINA ALMOST RECOGNIZED?

OTTAWA (CP)—M. J. Coldwell says Canada intended to recognize Communist China in 1950 but for some unexplained reason did not. The national CCF leader told a church group Wednesday night "only the private papers of Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent or L. B. Pearson will reveal why there wasn't such a recognition afforded once the Chinese civil war ended."

Mutual Advantage
In Merger—Chant

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant supports city-Saanich amalgamation.

"I am sure it would be to the mutual advantage of Victoria and Saanich to grow and prosper together," said the Victoria MLA.

"The two of them speaking with one voice will carry much more weight and will go farther together than separately," more weight and will go farther together than separately.

"Victoria and Saanich should think positively of the benefits and not negatively of the problems," he said.

Victoria's other MLA, George Gregory, declined comment on the issue.

Three public meetings on amalgamation have been planned following presentation of the Deutsch report recommending a merger of the two municipalities.

Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association scheduled a meeting for next Tuesday, at 8 p.m., in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall.

The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce's amalgamation committee plans to hold a forum November 25.

A third public meeting is planned for November 27, sponsored by the capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada and the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group.

Top Ten in Shrubs
For Fall Planting

With shrub planting time upon us, and big empty spaces in new gardens which were so recently colorful with annuals, gardeners are asking for a list of "the top ten" shrubs. Nothing is more difficult than to select the "best" out of the hundreds known to horticulture. Unavoidably, any individual's choice is colored by personal preference, but those in this brief list are included also from the standpoint of ease of culture, suitability to the average size garden, availability and general usefulness over more than one season of the year.

One of the tallest of the shrubs is Euonymus europaeus (the spindle tree), with roundish leaves and brilliantly colored fruit which lasts well into fall.

Azaleas have two seasons of beauty in the garden—brilliant flowers during May, and colorful foliage in fall. These are usually planted in spring, though if you know the varieties you want, they may be put in now.

Viburnum tinus (laurestinus) may seem a trite suggestion, but there is no denying the fact of its beautiful glossy foliage and pink buds from October on. Even though the white flowers may fall to open in frosty weather, the shrub is well worth the space.

Appointments Made To Quebec Upper House By Duplessis

QUEBEC (CP)—Health Minister Albion Paquette and John P. Rowatt of Montreal have been appointed to the 24-seat Legislative Council-Upper House of the provincial Legislature.

Premier Duplessis announced the appointments today after a meeting of the cabinet.

Mr. Paquette resigned his seat in the Legislature Aug. 20. Mr. Rowatt is the president of the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal and until recently was chairman of the Protestant committee of the public education council.

Mr. Paquette, who is still Quebec's minister of health, will sit for the division of Rougemont.

Crescent, 'Atha-B', Cayuga to East Coast

By MONTE ROBERTS

Early next year the RCN Pacific Command will have a homogeneous, seven-ship anti-submarine squadron with a "hunter-killer" potential unsurpassed among the world's surface anti-submarine groups.

Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer, Pacific Coast, revealed today an increase in the strength of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, from six to seven ships.

Three older-type destroyers will be transferred to the Atlantic Command, and replaced with four modern, St. Laurent-class anti-submarine destroyer escorts.

The changeover in ships will take place from January to April. Coming here from the east coast are HMC Ships Assiniboine, Saguenay, Ottawa and St. Laurent, the "lead ship" of Canada's new anti-sub navy.

Leaving for the east coast will be HMCs Crescent (senior ship of the Second Canadian at present), and the improved Tribal-class destroyers HMC Ships Athabaskan and Cayuga.

RADIOACTIVITY CHECK MADE ON U.K. FREIGHTER

A British freighter which discharged cargo at Victoria Monday will be examined at Vancouver by a nuclear expert to see if one of its holds is contaminated.

Ss. Loch Avon brought a cobalt bomb to Vancouver for trans-shipment to Ottawa. The bomb was in No. 2 hold, which was not opened when the ship discharged cargo here.

The nuclear expert is flying from Ottawa to check out the ship. Longshoremen were temporarily withdrawn from work Wednesday when reports of possible contamination were spread.

AMALGAMATION REPORT

This is the second of 19 parts presenting the verbal report made by Dr. J. J. Deutsch to a Victoria-Saanich committee in which amalgamation of the two municipalities was recommended. The report is being printed in a serial form in the interests of voters who may cast ballots on the question.

THE COST OF SERVICES IN TWO MUNICIPALITIES:

The financial advisors to the Committee, Ismay, Boiston, Dunn & Co., have prepared comprehensive and detailed financial statistics on a comparable basis which has enabled the committee to make a careful analysis of the financial situation in each of the two municipalities.

The following is a summary of the recent trends in expenditures shown, as far as possible, on a comparable basis.

TOTAL EXPENDITURES FROM CURRENT REVENUES

	Thousands of dollars		Dollars per capita		Per $1,000 of Net Assessment
	Victoria	Saanich	Victoria	Saanich	Victoria	Saanich
1953	4,199	1,201	80	37	—	—
1956	4,855	1,586	89	41	55	31
1957	5,152	1,738	93	43	57	32
1958*	5,600	2,150	100	51	61	38

* As per budget provision for the year ended Dec. 31, 1958.

It will be seen that total expenditures from current revenues in Victoria were substantially greater than in Saanich, but those of Saanich have been rising more rapidly due to the greater increases in population. Between 1953 and 1958 total expenditures in Victoria rose by 33% while those of Saanich rose by nearly 80%.

The significant differences in the per capita expenditures reflect in part the costs associated with the central position of Victoria and the concentration of commercial and industrial activity in that city. Furthermore, total expenditures in Victoria per $1,000 of net assessment are approximately 60% greater than in Saanich. This difference is due, partly to the larger amount of exempt property in Victoria, and partly to a greater outlay on services.

In Victoria 38% of the gross property assessment is exempt from municipal taxation compared with 29% in Saanich. This difference arises in considerable part out of the fact that provincial property which is almost entirely located in Victoria is exempt from municipal taxation.

The assessments used for the calculations in the foregoing table were prepared by the Assessors of the respective municipalities and have been adjusted to reflect an estimate of the application of equalized assessments in accordance with the requirements of the Provincial Assessment Commissioner. These adjustments were made in order to enable a valid comparison to be drawn between the two municipalities and between each of the years shown.

The reasons for the differences in the expenditures of the two municipalities are indicated more specifically by the respective costs of the particular services.

The considerable differences in the expenditures of the two municipalities on particular services reflect in large measure the differing circumstances between a central city with its concentration of business activities, and a predominantly residential suburban municipality which is rapidly expanding. In some cases the differences are the result of different policies and of different methods of allocating costs between the general taxpayer and the direct beneficiary.

The costs of general administration in the two municipalities, shown under General Government, are substantially the same in relation to net assessment after taking into account the higher cost of Victoria's

... HERE ... AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

There are some red faces in the legislative press gallery this week.

The scribes planned a bumper farewell luncheon at the Union Club for Peter Bruton, soon returning to his native New Zealand, and overlooked only one detail—they forgot to invite the guest of honor.

Soon after 12 noon, frantic phone calls went out in search of Peter. His name was belated in every hotel lobby in town. Courthouse officials sought him in the Sloan Royal Commission, the Supreme Court and the County Court. All too no avail. Peter could not be found and the luncheon in his honor proceeded without him.

Where was Peter? Why, munching a hamburger in a downtown cafeteria!

I see the provincial government is inviting tenders for the removal of:

One tree, maple, at the Legislative Buildings.
One tree, maple, and one tree, holly, at Government House.

Speaking of government, Mrs. R. J. Talmadge of Beach Drive is seeking that delicious poem on the Magna Carta recited in the old Lincolnshire dialect by Stanley Holloway.

Here is the concluding verse, adapted for local use: An it's through that there Magna Carta

As were signed by the barons of old,
That in B.C. today we can do as we like,
As long as we do as we're told.

The other verses can be found at Victoria public library in a collection of poems fronted by Albert and the Lion.

Private enterprise department: Five city firms submitted quotations for a typewriter wanted in the city detectives' office.

Finger prints are now being examined.

That Town Meeting of Canada to be staged at Victoria's Britannia Legion Hall Friday evening is the survival of a custom started in England during the reign of Harold the Saxon in the 11th century.

This was the Witan Aemot at which the King and his subjects met to discuss problems of the day in open forum. It seems the meetings were suppressed by William the Conqueror after his notorious 1066 invasion, but were later revived.

The Pilgrim Fathers took the idea to New England, says Arthur Helps, founder and moderator of Town Meeting, and the congressional library in Washington refers to it as the earliest form of democracy on the American continent.

$20 Million Firm Set Up For Wenner-Gren Project

A $20,000,000 company has been incorporated to launch the vast hydro power development proposed by the Wenner-Gren interests in the Rocky Mountain trench area of British Columbia. Papers were filed with the registrar of companies office today as the first legal step following Premier Bennett's recent announcement that the huge project is going ahead.

Name of the new firm is Peace River Power Development Company. Incorporation was done by the Vancouver law firm of Campney, Owen and Murphy.

Documents related to registration of the new firm did not specify who would be directors.

Objects of the new company will take in a vast range of operation.

Briefly, the company proposes to take all steps necessary to ascertain extent of natural resources in any part of the province, and take all steps leading to development.

Such exploratory work may be done "alone or in conjunction with others."

ALL KINDS OF ENERGY

Added objectives are to "acquire and develop" such natural resources, alone or with others, and to carry on any business or businesses in connection with acquisition and development of natural resources.

It is stipulated the company proposes to "generate, transmit and distribute all kinds of energy."

The documents also state the company proposes to acquire rights, licences, concessions, grants, decrees, powers, privileges, surveys, reports, plans and other information and documents which may be considered useful.

It was noted the incorporation does not permit sale of shares to the public.

Canadians Beat Dickens Out of Britons

Canadians and Americans are more enthusiastic over Charles Dickens' works today than the people of England, says actor-lecturer John Greaves.

Mr. Greaves should know. He has given 650 Dickensian lecture recitals in all three countries since the war and will give his 651st lecture before the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel Friday at noon.

During his 40 odd years as a lecturer he has given literally thousands of character readings from Dickens.

"I am sorry to say the people of England are not as keen as they used to be," said jolly white-haired Mr. Greaves interviewed on his arrival in Victoria this morning. "But Canadians and Americans, young and old, are as enthusiastic as ever."

At the University of British Columbia Wednesday night, Mr. Greaves was warned not to expect a big crowd because of counter attractions.

"Instead, I had an audience of nearly 800 students and there weren't enough chairs to go round."

AMATEUR RECITALIST

Mr. Greaves, who is honorary secretary of the Dickens Fellowship in London, calls himself an "amateur" recitalist. But from all accounts the term is very relative.

"I have never seen anyone but Dickens across like he does," said John Aseltine of the Dickens Fellowship of California, who drove Mr. and Mrs. Greaves up the coast from his home in San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. Greaves and Mr. and Mrs. Aseltine were met off the Vancouver steamer by Mrs. Dorothy Hewitt White, secretary of the Dickens Fellowship of Victoria. Mr. Greaves will be guest of honor at a fellowship reception at the home of E. F. Waterstones, president, at 565 Marifield, tonight at 8.

Friday night he will speak at Victoria College.

Lions Club district governor Louis L. Valentine, of Mount Vernon, Washington, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the local chapter Friday in the Empress Hotel.

James Patrick Bold boldly denied boldness when he appeared in city police court today charged with being drunk in a public place.

When the clerk called the accused he neglected to give the full name and Bold spoke up, "James PATRICK Bold—Bold by name but not by nature."

Magistrate H. C. Hall asked for his plea.

"Under the Liquor Act I gotta plead guilty," Bold said.

He was fined $10 or three days in jail.

LOTS OF FIRE AND FUN

Bang-Up Parties Set for 'Ghosties'

Greater Victoria will jump to the bang of fireworks and the squeals of hideously masked children Friday night with the magic that is Halloween.

Bonfires will crackle, wieners will roast and wary adults will hand out candy and cake in what looks to be the biggest local celebration of All Hallow's Eve, the eve of the Christian festival All Saints Day in local history.

Householders had better have a full cookie jar on hand when the witches and hobgoblins come to call.

Biggest and noisiest blowout will be staged at the Memorial Arena from 8 to 12 p.m., where some 4,000 youngsters will set the joint jumping with rock 'n' roll music, hula hoop contests, skating and dancing on the ice.

SPECIAL PRIZES

There'll be special prizes for the best costumes, and for dancing, while outside the arena a monster bonfire will be burning for the roasting and toasting of wieners, corn, potatoes and marshmallows.

The jamboree will be flooded, lit, and more light will come from a big fireworks display. Youngsters will get in for 50 cents. Adults can go free.

Another big Halloween party will explode in and around Oak Bay fire hall at 7 o'clock, with several thousand children and adults expected.

A bonfire will get everything off to a flaming start, followed by music by the Home Towners and a fancy dress competition for children up to 12, judged by fire and police officials.

Pop and hotdogs will keep the children going as they light firecrackers and dance to rock 'n' roll beats. And it's all free.

A similar party will shake the trees in Bullen's Park, conducted by Esquimalt Lions. Halloween candies and hotdogs will be served during the fun, to begin at 6:30.

Another big bonfire will be provided, together with firewicks and free hotdogs and soft drinks, by the Century Toppers, a custom car club of 25 members at Cameo Point, off Dallas Road in James Bay, starting at 7:30 p.m.

There is enough free food for 200 children, and adults are invited.

Throughout the city, extra police will be posted to curb unruly enthusiasm and keep a lookout for fires. "Every man will be out," Chief John Blackstock said today.

PITY PUSSY, KEEP HER HOME

Halloween is fine for kids but not for cats, it was pointed out by Cats Protection League officials today.

"Every year a number of cats get frightened or burned from exploding fireworks," said secretary Mrs. H. M. Kerswell. "They run away and some never come back."

She said owners should keep their pets "confined to barracks" during the festivities.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Sputnik III carrier rocket will be high in the northwest sky at 6:27 p.m. today, according to Dominion Astrophysical Observatory officials and will appear again Friday night in the low northwest sky at 6:21 p.m.

Wally Bates was the life of the lunch hour at HMCS Naden chief's mess Wednesday.

He drew a perfect 29 crib hand—his first in 13 years at the game.

He was playing with Gordon Schmaltz.

The murder trial of Mrs. Alice Louella Kerr, charged with the gunshot slaying of her husband, Albert, at their North Pender Island home, will start in Assize Court, Victoria, on Nov. 17.

The trial had to be postponed after defence counsel Alan Macfarlane became ill last week. Mrs. Kerr's previous counsel, Hugh Botterell, died suddenly the day the preliminary hearing was to start last month.

A 17-year-old boy was fined $25 and $5 costs in Colwood RCMP juvenile court Wednesday on a charge of being a minor in possession of liquor.

There might be arrests "later today" in regard to the finding of five pieces of explosive in Mount Newton High School Wednesday, Chief Fred Brownlee of Central Saanich Police said today.

An investigation of the school was made at noon, and as a result of finding five pieces of stumping powder in a locker, all 300 students were evacuated.

"We are positive there is no more explosive in the building," he said.

Two weeks ago dynamite was found under a foot bridge on McKenzie Avenue in Saanich. It had been hidden there by two high school "rocket experimenters."

A Density of passenger cars today is a car for every five persons, and a motor vehicle for every 3.6 persons.

METRO WILL BE BACK IN ACTION... HE HOPES

First in line to autograph cast on broken leg of Edmonton forward Metro Prystai was Victoria Cougar coach Pat Egan. Prystai, who broke left leg for third time in less than year while playing against Cougars

Tuesday, still hopes to resume professional hockey career next season. His chances are considered slim but student nurse Miss G. Wood is making sure Metro gets best of care during stay in hospital.

SPORTSCRIPT

BY ERNE FEDORUK

Metro Prystai has reservations about certain things. The number "four" is an example.

But playing hockey again is not one of his reservations. The Edmonton Flyers' winger, a veteran of 10 National Hockey League campaigns who Tuesday suffered a broken bone in his left leg for the third time in less than a year, has no qualms about playing professional hockey again.

The chunky forward has definite views on the matter. "Heck," he said, "I'm too young to retire."

Ordinarily, hospitals and hospital rooms leave me cold. But room 454 in the Royal Jubilee has a cheery atmosphere about it on this particular October evening. It might be because this native of Yorkton, Sask., a part-time philosopher, is a full-time optimist.

When others regard Prystai's injury as "most unfortunate," Metro passes it off as "one of the breaks of the game." When sad references are made to his broken tibia, Prystai responds with witticism. It isn't bravado, either.

It might seem ironic that Prystai had to wait until he reached the minor pro ranks before suddenly running into a rash of bad breaks. NHL scouts hung the "can't miss" label on Prystai when he played with the Moose Jaw Canucks during the years they ruled western junior hockey in the mid-40s.

There Were No Stopovers for Metro

The scouts, for once, were right. There were no stopovers for Metro. He stepped straight into big time with Chicago Black Hawks.

The record book shows Prystai as having missed only 22 league games in 10 years. He played in 659 and only minor ailments caused him to miss as many as he did.

He doesn't wish to argue with the record book, but he feels there's a slight discrepancy in the number of games he appeared in during his first season in the NHL. That was in 1947-48, the days of a 60-game schedule. The book shows him as having played in 54 games.

Metro doesn't remember missing any games. "Those were the days when they had a rule that if a player didn't get on the ice, he wasn't given credit as having played. I dressed for all of the games," he said.

The 175-pounder was perhaps one of the most popular players ever to play for Detroit Red Wings. There were other distinctions, too. In the 1951-52 playoffs, for example, he was the leading point-getter in the Stanley Cup battles.

The "can't miss" kid never quite blossomed into a great scorer, however. It might be a disappointment in an otherwise meritorious career, but even experienced hockey men are at a loss to explain why.

His best season, from a standpoint of production, was in 1949-50 when he scored 29 goals and 22 assists. He scored 20 goals the following season and 21 the year after that. Those were his only 20-goal-or-better campaigns.

All in all, he scored 150 goals in 10 seasons.

Ken Always Got the Same Answer

Ken Reardon, former NHL great as a defenceman and now an executive of Montreal Canadiens, always found Prystai's story a puzzling one.

"Whenever Prystai's team came to Montreal," Reardon once told me, "I always used to ask various persons at the Forum, 'Who do you like out there?'"

"I always got the same answer... 'Prystai.'"

"You never got the same answer from the record book," Reardon said.

Prystai's movements on the ice have always been a pleasure to watch. When other players "fight" the puck, "Meatball" manipulates it smoothly and gracefully. He was always a two-way performer and his urgent back-checking duties were, perhaps, one of the reasons he never became a great goal-getter.

Metro will be 31 years old next Friday. He still feels he has a few good years ahead of him, but not this one.

He also has a feeling that four has suddenly become his unlucky number.

His troubles began in Detroit about Christmas last year. A hard shot caught him on the ankle and cracked a bone. After recovering, he was sent to Edmonton to round into shape.

He was playing his fourth game with the Flyers when he broke his tibia (shin bone). He hobbled around in a cast for the next six months. Prystai wasn't ready to play until Flyers made their first jaunt to the coast. He played his first game in Vancouver. Games in New Westminster and Seattle followed.

Game No. 4, for Prystai, was the one against the Cougars. "I guess," Meatball reflected, "four isn't my lucky number."

A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME WOULD SMELL JUST AS SWEET

BOSTON (AP) — Foxcatcher Farm's Rose Trellis, an 8 to 1 outsider in a field of 12, surged on the outside in the stretch to win the 23rd running of the $61,000 Yankee Handicap Wednesday at Suffolk Downs.

Martin's Rullah, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, finished second, 1 1/2 lengths ahead of Backbone.

At Jamaica Park, Laudy Lawrence's Beau Diable, rated off the pace until the top of the stretch, closed with a rush to win the $28,450 Long Island Handicap. The five-year-old son of Devil Diver-Bellesoeur, ridden by Hedley Woodhouse, won by two lengths over Casual Friend.

Oaks Nail Down Playoff Berth

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. This should be the Oak Bay High School senior soccer team's motto as the Oaks prepare for their fourth clash in five years with Victoria High School for the city championship. They have lost out on their three previous trips into the final.

Their playoff position secured after rolling to a 3-0 shutout over Milnes Landing, Wednesday, the Oaks will meet the tough Vic High squad in a best of three series starting at Vic High, November 7. The second game of the series will be at Oak Bay, November 12. A toss-up will decide the host for the third match, if necessary, on November 17.

Vic High wound up its league action Wednesday with a 5-2 victory over Esquimalt High. Although the Esquimalt crew hit back hard in the second half, the Vics had too much power and finished their schedule with five straight wins.

In the third game, Mount View took a close decision as they nipped Mount Douglas, 2-1. Alec Anderson and Glen Robbins scored for Mount View, while Dave Hill replied for Mount Douglas.

John Youson led Oak Bay with two goals, and Bill Baker picked up a single tally against Milnes Landing.

Vic High's scoring was taken care of by Allan Glen, with two goals; Dave Rees, Tom Collett, Jim Peters and Alec Lacey. Both of Esquimalt's tallies came from the toe of Bob Fraser in the second half.

With a playoff position already secure, Vic High coach Harry Rennie was looking ahead to the playoff series and rested stars Robin Barnes and Jim Peters in the second half.

Mrs. R. Foster, putting together rounds of 80 and 76, captured the Benning Cup competition for ladies of the Victoria Golf Club with a 36-hole net aggregate total of 156.

Mrs. Foster's 76 was the best second-round total while Mrs. C. L. McLaughlin led after the first 18 with a net 74.

Mrs. McLaughlin gained some consolation with a victory in turkey competition Tuesday, topping the "C" division. Mrs. J. L. Proctor won the turkey in the silver division while Mrs. R. McDonald topped the bronze division.

GRIM STORY OF 'MIRACLE SURVIVORS'

'We Prayed...Sang Hymns...Hoped'

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — "God, how I hollered!"

These words, uttered through dried and cracked lips by Gorley Kempt, told of his first reaction to the sounds that heralded the miraculous rescue of 12 men from Cumberland No. 2 colliery.

Kempt, lying with his mouth against an air pipe where he and 11 others were trapped for six days and nights behind a wall of rock and debris in terrible darkness, heard a clink of metal hitting metal.

"I couldn't believe it when I heard that cable rattle. I wouldn't let myself believe it. I just lay there listening for nearly an hour, I guess."

"Then I heard a pick or something click on the pipe and I hollered. God, how I hollered."

"When someone hollered back—well, I just can't describe the feeling."

At the other end of the air pipe, bare-faced rescue workers heard the words "We are alive in here—how about some water."

Twelve hours later they had clawed and dug their way through the barrier and brought out the 12.

Telling of the six days in the tomb, Kempt said: "I dug a 'cubbyhole' in the rubble. I thought there might be a way out but there wasn't. And soon I knew there wasn't. So I just lay there day after day. And I prayed—and I'm not a praying man."

Before many of the 150 hours of their entombment had lapsed, what little food and water they had were exhausted.

After a few days of their eternity their miners' lamps died and they themselves prepared for the death they were almost sure would come.

Caleb Rushton, a choir singer in his spare time, sang hymns from time to time.

"I tried to lead them as best I could and sometimes we were all singing together. I guess our favorite was "Stranger of Galilee." We sang that a lot. It seemed to help."

Joe McDonald, with a fractured thigh, didn't stir from a rock pile for the whole time.

"That's all I did. I just lay there and I prayed and thought about the Lord and asked Him to bring me out safely. That and the stuff we drank; that's what kept me alive."

Wilfred Hunter crawled back and forth in the tunnel.

"When the bump came last Thursday, the floor came up and the ceiling came down. I was hurled about 15 feet along with more falling coal and rock and timber and iron than I ever saw. Two steps behind me were my buddy and my boss. I haven't seen them since but we'll get them out now, I guess."

The buddy, Carl Moran, was buried today. The boss was Charlie Burton whose funeral was held on Wednesday.

"We had a couple of lamps operating for a day or so and I crawled around to look," said Hunter. "I saw my twin brother, Frank imbedded in the

THE PETER TOWNSEND STORY

Margaret Found Harmony of Mind

By NORMAN BARRYMAINE
(Copyright By Peter Davies Ltd.)

CHAPTER 4

It was a chill morning in February when Townsend, now 29 years old and as impeccable as hours of work by his batman and tailor could make him, was saluted by the sentry outside the gilded wrought-iron gates of the Palace and then was shown into the King's study by a servant in blue battle dress.

It was a small, sunny room decorated in the King's favorite colors—light green, walls and dark green carpet. The interview lasted about half an hour.

The King must have asked many questions about Peter's life and Peter's family—a family that for generations had served its country.

So while the King was desirous of rewarding gallantry rather than of furthering the advantages of birth, Peter Townsend was really tailor-made in both respects.

Also, from the standpoint of the court, he was married to the right kind of woman. There is no doubt Peter made a good impression. A few days later the appointment was confirmed.

Peter was to become a courier. In a month he had started work in the palace.

If this story were fiction, it would be a picturesque touch in weaving the threads of a romance to have Peter meet Princess Margaret on the day he went to see the King for the first time. In fact, this is what really happened.

In those days the Princess lived with her elder sister, Elizabeth, at Windsor Castle. They came to London one day each week.

After Peter had left the King's room he was standing in the corridor outside the equestrian room talking to one of the household. Elizabeth and Margaret came along. Peter was introduced.

To the 13-year-old Princess Margaret, Townsend was just one more of that army of service officers who could be seen in the palace at any time during those vital years of war.

And what did Townsend think of her?

The impression she created on everyone at that time was of a leggy, excitable girl with a lot to say and very little time in which to say it. She chattered endlessly in a voice far louder than the usual murmur employed by the Royal Family.

Bus Fare Hike Starts Nov. 9

But fares in Victoria city will go up from 10 to 13 cents cash on Sunday, Nov. 9, the Public Utilities Commission announced today. The city zone extends in a 3 1/2-mile circle from the City Hall.

Children's half fares will remain at 5 cents cash in the city.

Books of tickets for city travel will be sold to adults at four for 50 cents (12 1/2 cents each) and to children at five for 25 cents (5 cents each).

Similar increases will be effective in outer Victoria and in Vancouver, North Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster.

In Vancouver city adults will pay 15 cents instead of 13, and children 7 cents instead of 5.

Meeting in Victoria this morning, the PUC decided to grant B.C. Electric's application for higher transit fares in full.

Reasons given for the decision were: 1. Higher operating costs. 2. The need for B.C. Electric to show "a reasonable return" on its operation in order to borrow fresh capital. 3. Fewer people using the buses because of increased auto traffic.

Rescuers Burrow For Trapped Men

From Times' News Services

SPRINGHILL, N.S.—Frank Doxey, assistant to rescue director Harold Gordon, said late today there is a "slim chance" more men may be alive in Cumberland Mine.

He told newspaper men the rescue crews still have about 420 feet of debris-filled tunnels to penetrate before the fate of the men there is known.

Rescue miners dug away at piles of rock in the hope more survivors would be found. But there was no more good news.

Gordon said: "There is nothing much we can do but keep slugging—and it's hard slugging."

Following the miraculous survival of 12 men who had been trapped at the 13,000-foot level for six days, 55 men remained in the wreckage of the mine.

Mine officials declined to confirm rumors that 24 bodies had been found in the same area where the 12 were entombed.

When a bump wrecked the heart of No. 2 colliery last Thursday, 174 men were trapped. Eighty-one emerged during the next day and 25 bodies have since been brought to the surface.

Doxey said crews of dragger-men are making slow progress in attempts to reach remaining miners from the 12,600-foot level because of the confined space in which they must operate and because of gas.

He said they hope to get gas cleared out of that level so that bare-faced miners—those without oxygen equipment—can pitch in and help.

He said the 12 rescued men were faced miners have worked their way 120 feet up the 13,000-foot wall.

All 12 rescued from the 13,000-foot level early today were reported to be in "surprisingly good" condition considering their six-day ordeal.

They said, "there's no hope for the others. We counted 24 bodies."

However, one rescue worker said, "we didn't expect to find those fellows down there, and damn it we can't quit now."

BRIBE TRIAL JUDGE TELLS JURORS: 'Loans Just as Criminal'

(See Page 8)

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson told the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial jury today that loans given for corrupt purposes are just as criminal as gifts for corrupt purposes.

The presiding judge, continuing his summation in the 74th day of the case, made the observation in referring to the defence of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

The main point of that defence was that the former minister got some $7,100 in loans from timber broker H. W. Gray as a friend, with no strings attached—that they were covered by notes and repaid.

At another point the justice said that the crown had properly stressed that "these loans were not made by cheque in the normal way" but by cash, by wire and by bonds. The judge

$5,000 GIFT BY POPE JOHN

OTTAWA (CP)—A $5,000 gift to the hard-hit mine families of Springhill, N.S., was among the first actions to be taken by the new Pope John XXIII.

The apostolic delegation here announced today that the money has been sent to Most Rev. J. Gerald Berry, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Halifax, to be dispensed.

Relatives of still missing miners gathered at the pithead again, to await developments, and removal of bodies.

The 70 rescue workers were split into two teams, one to remove bodies and the other to explore the rest of the 13,000-foot tunnel.

The work of the exploratory crew took preference, and no bodies were to be removed if it held up the drive to the far end of the tunnel.

Doctors who examined the 12 latest survivors said that only two—Ted Michniak, 59, and Joseph McDonald, 38, suffered injuries. McDonald has a broken leg and Michniak a badly injured back.

The men will be held for a 48 or 72-hour observation period and those found fit will be released.

The families of the miners, who were allowed to visit the men shortly after they were admitted, will be allowed a second visit tonight.

News men were given three minutes for fast interviews this morning.

The miners complained mainly of thirst. They shared a two-quart can of water among them, but it lasted only three days.

"My God, give me a drink," McDonald said, as he was carried out.

ceiling and just dangling there. He was dead but I couldn't leave him.

"Every day I would crawl over to where he was in the dark and feel that he was still there. I didn't want to lose him."

Hunter said they had only a two-quart can of water among the 12. "We rationed it but it lasted only three days."

While some of the 12 admitted they had abandoned hope, Hunter declared he didn't.

"I guess I turned over every stone and once I thought I heard somebody tapping. But even after that stopped—about the second day—I didn't give up hope. I figured we'd get out."

McDonald said: "We were Catholics and Protestants down there but we all prayed together aloud that God would save our lives. I'm thinner and pretty weak but my spirit's strong."

After four or five days, he said, he thought he heard noises "at the top of the 13,000-foot wall. But they seemed awfully far out. Since some of the boys had already given up hope, I didn't mention it."

Rushton said others had died around them while they waited.

"There were some that hurt the first night but nothing afterwards. Those who weren't killed instantly by the bump, and most of them were, died shortly after the gas started coming in."

"The gas wasn't too bad and later we got a little circulation of air to clear it. But those who were badly hurt at the start didn't have the energy to fight off the fumes."

"I was wearing a luminous watch and we kept track of the time and days that way. She's a pretty good watch. Nothing stops her. . . . I guess she's blessed with the same higher power that saved us."

Rushton said two lunch pails were found after the upheaval smashed the mine. The men nibbled on corners of sandwiches for two days.

"It was while we were nibbling that I started them singing hymns. . . . I'm a choir singer and they really liked it when Bowie Maddison and I would do a duet on 'Stranger of Galilee.' They liked that better than any other hymn and we sang it three or four times a day for them."

Maddison said: "I kept feeling over for the man next to me to make sure I wasn't alone. When I would feel he was there, I would know he was still with me and both of us were alive. There must be a God to give us the faith we had in knowing we would be found all right."

Dr. John R. Ryan said the men told him they had tried to dig themselves out but soon tired in the waist-high pocket.

Barry Leadbetter, Levy Milley and Hugh Guthro were in exceptionally good shape when they finally emerged. A good man can go a month without food provided he has water. But these men were five days without food and six days without water.

"And when they came out Leadbetter said he was strong enough to walk on his own. He would have, too, but I doubt whether he could have gone far."

"They did a great thing," he said.

"We were all so happy to see them the whole bunch of us just started to cry."

Rich Must Help Poor Says Philip

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Philip has established himself as a royal celebrity who doesn't need a printed text or court prompter to help make up his mind about international affairs.

Blending gentle quips with serious comments, the Queen's husband presided Wednesday at a four-nation symposium on such subjects as foreign aid and Formosa.

His off-the-cuff conclusion: If the Free World leaves too great a gap between rich and poor nations, it will sow the seeds of its own destruction.

Modern life with its improved communications means, he said, that everybody must accept 20th-century standards. It was no longer possible for one country to live in the stone age and another to enjoy high living standards.

Prince Philip took the chair at the two-hour symposium as president of the Commonwealth section of the English-Speaking Union, holding its third post-war world conference here.

Philip and the panel speakers first made set speeches on the theme of the contribution of English-speaking peoples in a changing world, a title suggested by Philip himself, then plunged into impromptu discussion of questions from some 900 ESU delegates and observers.

Today, the Prince took the morning off to take part in a duck shoot in the Ottawa valley area. Later he was to propose a toast to the Commonwealth-United States partnership at a formal dinner.

Governor-General Massey, his host at Government House, was to support the toast. The conference ends Friday.

'WE JUST SAT ...'

Miners Weep at Rescue

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — Hugh Guthro, 31-year-old coal miner, said from a hospital bed today he and his 11 buddies cried when they knew rescuers were coming for them.

Guthro, twice spared death in mine accidents, told his wife to go home and rest rather than stay any longer with them at All Saints Hospital.

The 12 men who returned from a mine where life was counted out prayed, sang hymns and managed the odd joke during their nightmare.

With less than an hour's sleep during the underground ordeal, Guthro took 40 minutes to talk about his second escape from a battered coal mine. He was trapped three days in neighboring No. 4 colliery in 1956 before rescuers reached him.

When the upheaval occurred Thursday Guthro said the men near him were tossed up against the ceiling. He remained conscious and knew miners were dying along the coal wall. He was buried up to the chest. Others helped him out.

"At first we tried to dig our own way out but soon we got so weak we had to stop. We had no food and no water since Sunday or Monday. The last thing we ate were a few crusts of bread."

"We rationed our lights and cut some batteries off the dead men but on Monday we were in darkness."

Guthro said there was no gas in their tomb and fresh air seeped in. "We just sat during the last three days."

Guthro said the bare-faced miners, who conduct rescue operations without respirators, "did a great thing." Miner Mort Hunter was the first man to appear in the hole the rescuers burrowed through.

"I'm done with coal mining," Guthro said. "You come out of it twice and that's enough. I'm not trying for a third time."

'GREAT RELIEF' — DIEFENBAKER

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the rescue of 12 miners at Springhill was "a very great relief."

"I can only hope and pray—it is not too much to hope that in the next few hours news of more survivors may be reaching us," he said.

SURVIVORS EACH LOST 10 POUNDS

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — How much beating does a miner's body take while entombed 6½ days 13,000 feet underground?

Three doctors who treated the 12 survivors of a mine upheaval in No. 2 colliery here today made these observations:

Each man lost about 10 pounds. Eyesights were fine. Some may be in the hospital a week.

Except for that, Drs. J. C. Murray, J. R. Ryan and R. A. Burton were "very surprised at the good condition of the men."

Rest Ordered For Company President

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — Harold Gordon, coal company vice-president and rescue director here, was ordered to bed by his doctors today for a rest.

He had spent most of Wednesday night underground directing the release of 12 men found alive after six days in the caved-in Cumberland mine.

Before he left the mine he told his rescue crew to keep at it in the hope more men may be found.

"There's nothing we can do but keep slugging," he said, "and it's hard slugging."
